CARDINAL GREETS A. O. H.

3,000 Delegates to Convention Attend Mass at Cathedral. Ladies' Auxiliary Are Present

The National A. O. H. convention got formally under way today with a mass at the Cathedral, attended by 3,000 of the delegates to the convention and to the gathering of the Ladies' Auxiliary. Cardinal O'Connell delivered an address.

The Cathedral was filled, and the women formed a large proportion of the audience.

Bishop O'Connell of Richmond, Va., was the celebrant of the mass. He was assisted by the Rev. William B. Finigan and the Rev. Neil O. Cronin of the Cathedral.

Monsignor Chittick of Hyde Park and the Rev. Philip J. O'Donnell attended the Cardinal. The Rev. Joseph F. Coppinger, P. R., of St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, was personal chaplain to the Cardinal.

ADDRESS BY CARDINAL.

The Rev. Dr. Livingstone of New York was to have preached, but he was unable to come, and Cardinal O'Connell made this announcement and substituted an informal address for the Rev. Dr. Livingstone's sermon.

The Cardinal welcomed the delegates to Boston. He spoke of the significance of Boston's place in the history of the country. Then he turned to Ireland and Ireland's long struggle for freedom.

He did not refer directly to present conditions or to England.

He spoke of the religious spirit of the Irish race and their "ability to see the supernatural."

"Tell me if you can" he said. "Tell me critically, tell me cynically, if you will, if that trait is not the most sublime title to nobility the world knows."

It was estimated there were in Bos-

Peaches? Yes, Southern Beauties, and They Smile on Old Boston

They are making a specialty just now of serving peaches at the Hotel Bellevue.

A half-car load has arrived, all smiles and Dixie accent.

Smiles and accent on a peach? Certainly? These are North Carolina girls. They are forty in number. Railroad figure eighty passengers to the average coach. So forty make a half-car load.

Hence the expression, "half-car load of peaches."

Likewise it is perfectly right to say they are "being served" at the Bellevue, for everyone, from the bell-hops up, is ready to jump at their slightest wish.

These girls come from the city of Raleigh, which has had its chief repute in Boston as the home of Uncle Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy.

Hereafter Raleigh will be remembered hereabouts as the town that grew those forty North Carolina beauties.

They were forty and they wished to see Boston. They yearned with patriotic desire to breathe the historic atmosphere of the Hub and to tread the soil of the Pilgrims and the Puritans.

So they just naturally up and came along, duly chaperoned and all that. Mrs. R. P. Henkel and Mrs. Henry A. Rhyne are the chaperones. W. A. Swallow is in general charge of the party. Mr. Swallow is busy.

Among the girls are the Misses Celeste Henkel—presumably related to Mrs. Henkel of the chaperoning duo—Rebecca Miller, Marion Yount, Adelaide Erwin, Carry Hoffman, Florence Mitchell, Pearl Hislop, Billie Rowland and others up to the full twoscore.

If you see a party of charming girls, with the delicious drawling accent of the Southland, gazing at Bunker Hill Monument or touring our well known historic trips in the next three days, just take a good look. New York gets 'em next. The Hub's loss will be Manhattan's gain.

FIUME IS SHAKEN BY AN EARTHQUAKE

London, July 18.—A Central News dispatch from Amsterdam says damage has been caused by an earthquake in the region of Fiume, Austria. In the city of Fiume, the dispatch says, a terrible panic was caused by the earthquake.

BRITISH LABORERS GIVE UP VACATIONS

By International News Service.

London, July 18.—Further evidence of the manner in which British labor is striving to assist the government in wresting final victory from Germany was given here today. At a conference called by the trades union leaders it was decided to accept the proposal recently made by the government that the August holidays be postponed. This will assure an unbroken supply of ammunition and other material necessary for the maintainence of the offensive now being conducted by Sir Douglas Haig in France.

WIFE OF ENVOY TO CHRISTEN PERAL

The submarine Isaac Peral, the first warship ever built in this country for Spain, will be launched at Fore River shipyard at 2:30 p. m. Thursday, with Senora de Riano, wife of the Spanish Ambassador, as sponsor. Spanish diplomatic and naval representatives will attend the launching and christening.

The United States and Spain were at war eighteen years ago, so the fact that an American shipyard is building a war vessel for a former enemy is regarded as a pleasant tribute to the complete healing of the war wound.

Casement Must Die

APPEAL OF SIR ROGER CASEMENT DENIED

Irish Knight, Convicted of High Treason, Must Now Be Hanged Unless the King Intervenes

London, July 18.—The appeal of Sir Roger Casement from his conviction on the charge of high treason was dismissed in the criminal court of appeals today.

Casement must die unless King George intervenes in his behalf.

Arguments in behalf of the appellant were concluded this morning by Alexander Sullivan, K. C., chief of counsel for Casement.

A strong speal was made for the convicted man. Mr. Sullivan citing many quotations from the ancient law to sustain his contentions.

The chief points advanced by the counsellor were not taken by the court, and when the argument was in the court lost little time in handing down its decision.

Justice Darling presided and with him sat Justices Bray, Scrutton, Lawrence and Atkin.

When the proceedings were resumed the courtroom was crowded, the spectators listening with the deepest interest to the learned address of Casement's counsel.

In the continuation of his speech Mr. Sullivan argued that the offense charged under the statute under which the indictment was drawn could not exist because it was committed outside of the realm of the King's dominions.

Mr. Sullivan concluded his address at noon and immediately the judges retired. Within a few minutes they returned to the bench and the court proceeded to deliver its judgment without calling upon the crown to reply.

Casement, who was found guilty on June 29, was sentenced to death by hanging. The appeal was not directed against the death sentence, however, but against the conviction, and was based on legal points.

Michael F. Doyle of Philadelphia, advisory counsel for Casement, made the following statement, after the court had rejected the appeal:

"Today's decision concludes Casement's rights in court unless the case is taken into the House of Lords. In view of the fact that the Attorney-General was not called upon to reply to the defence's arguments, this is unlikely, as the Attorney-General has to give permission for further appeal. This decision is the first clear interpretation of the ancient statute relating to high treason, 556 years old. Powerful influences are at work to secure a reprieve, which we expect will be successful. Casement continues cheerful."

TEUTONS RECOVER GROUND

Take Offensive South of Somme and Recapture Some Positions on the Outskirts of Peronne

London, July 18.—A Petrograd dispatch to the London Telegraph states that a general retreat of the Austro-German forces on the eastern front has begun.

The Germans and Austro-Hungarians are laying waste the country and burning villages as they fall back.

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, July 18.—Heavily reinforced, the Germans have taken the offensive south of the Somme.

The War Office in its official communique today stated that the Germans had delivered many assaults between Biaches and Maisonnette, but that practically all were repulsed and that the battle is still raging there.

A few German elements, it was admitted, succeeded in penetrating the French position at Biaches, but the fighting is still in progress.

The Biaches-Maisonnette line lies to the southwest of Peronne, with Hill No. 87 intervening between them. That is the point where the French line lies nearest to Peronne, which is the immediate objective of General Foch.

In their counter-thrust the Germans delivered numerous attacks in an effort to dislodge the French from their position at Maisonnette, but these were repulsed by the concentrated fire of the French artillery and machine guns.

The text of the official communique follows:

"South of the Somme the Germans late yesterday and during the night attacked our positions from the village of Biaches as far as Maisonnette. Despite repeated assults, which cost them heavy losses, they were unable to capture Maisonnette. A few enemy detachments penetrated along the canal into the eastern section of Biaches, where the battle continues.

"On the left bank of the Meuse a

Man May Die From Plunge, Trying to Rescue Two Birds

Jeremiah Murphy was probably fatally hurt today saving the lives of two baby sparrows.

He stepped on a skylight on the roof of the nine-story building at No. 74 India street this noon to restore to a ledge the sparrows and their nest, which had fallen to the street. His weight broke the skylight glass and he fell down a shaft 100 feet to the basement. He was alive when taken to the Relief Hospital, but with little chance of surviving.

Murphy is twenty-seven years old. His home is at No. 4 Nassau street, South End. He worked for the Everett Press in the India street building.

The sparrow's nest, with its two birdlings, was dislodged from a high ledge on the building yesterday and fell to the sidewalk. The nest fell bird-side up and the baby sparrows were alive and peeping when one of the elevator boys found them. The boy brought birds and nest up to Murphy, who said he would put them back on the roof ledge in the morning.

Murphy put the birds and nest in a safe place in the building for over night. This noon he and John McGinty, a fellow-workman, went up on the roof, Murphy holding the nest and its two occupants.

Murphy stepped on the thick glass skylight covering a shaft four feet square which runs from basement to roof. He was just able to reach up and place the nest and birds on the ledge, where he thought the mother bird would find her lost family. Just as he settled back squarely on his feet from the exertion of reaching up, he gave a cry, then crashed through the glass and down nine stories.

McGinty, who had no time to clutch at him, says that Murphy must have felt the glass giving away under him, but did not have a chance to jump to the solid roof.

WANTS PROPERTY NOW IN WIFE'S NAME

William Aekin of Whitman street, Dorchester, asked the Superior Court today to compel his wife Mary to return to him real estate on Whitman street, which he says he paid for, but is in his wife's name; also personal property and his insurance policy. Mr. Aekin also says in his bill that his wife assaulted him and insulted him before their children and friends.

Chicago House Dynamited to Get Slayer of Five in Chicago. Hundreds of Shots Are Fired

By International News Service.

Chicago, July 18.—Seven persons are dead and five wounded as the result of a pitched battle between 150 policemen and a negro named McIntosh and his wife, barricaded in a house on the West Side today. The battle was ended only when the police dynamited the flat building in which the negroes were quartered after hundreds of shots had been fired.

He dropped instantly and Mrs. Knox went out to see what had happened. She was wounded and the police were unable to get to her assistance until after the house had been blown up.

FIRED HUNDREDS OF SHOTS.

The police soon appeared, and the minute they showed up McIntosh opened fire. It is presumed that his wife also assisted him in repelling the police, for she, as well as McIntosh, were said to be full of cartridges.

Police Captain Wesley Westbrook, in charge of the detail, called for reinforcements, with rifles, and hundreds of shots were fired.

GERMANS ON SOMME TAKE THE OFFENSIVE

surprise attack against our trenches at Hill No. 304 was checked by our fire.

"On the right bank the night was marked by grenade combats on the outskirts of Chapelle-Saintefine and west of Fleury. The enemy was repulsed at every point. There was a rather violent artillery duel in the region of Laufee and Chenois.

"On the rest of the front the night passed quietly."

British Advance On 1,000-Yard Front.

By International News Service.

London, July 18.—An advance for the British troops over a front of one thousand yards in the sector of Ovillers (Somme front) was announced in the official report issued by the War Office at noon.

Ovillers had been cleared of the last remnants of its German garrison on Sunday night and Monday morning, but in front of the village the Germans fought stubbornly.

The advance of the British in that district, which lies north of the Ancre, gives them control of a further section of the important Albert-Bapaume highway.

Ovillers lies on the northern side of the salient which the allies have thrust into the German line, and strong pressure has been exerted there to push back the Germans and thus straighten out the English front.

There have been some severe bombardments on the Somme front.

The text of the official report follows:

"Thick mist and incessant rains are still interfering with operations on the Somme front. To the northwards of Ovillers we made substantial progress last night on a front of 1,000 yards. The enemy was driven from strongly defended positions where we captured some prisoners and six machine guns. Near Wytschaete we successfully raided German trenches. Opposite Cuinchy an attempt by an enemy patrol to raid one of our trenches was repulsed."

Austrians Admit Retreat Near Lutsk

By International News Service.

Vienna, via Berlin, wireless, July 18.—Attempts of the Russians to advance against the Austro-Hungarians in southwestern Bukowina have been checked, says an official report made public by the War Office today.

The statement admits the retirement of Teuton forces southwest of Lutsk, stating that it was made necessary by the numerical superiority of the Russian troops. The report follows:

"Renewed attempts by the Russians to advance in the Bukowina against our positions south and southwest of Molodia were without success. The enemy sustained heavy losses.

"Fighting has been taking place between scouting parties of both sides in the forest district north of Prislopul.

"Attempts of the Russians to advance near Zalin and Tatarov were repulsed.

"Our sentries northwest of Burkanow frustrated a surprise attack against our trenches.

"Southwest of Lutsk the Russians attacked with numerically superior forces. The front section of our lines near Siskin withdrew into the district east of Horochow, while being covered upon the west flank by German counter attacks, the German allies south of Lutsk thereupon withdrew behind the lower Stripa, without being disturbed by the enemy.

"Russian night attacks west of Torazyn were repulsed.

"Italian theatre — Bombardments have been carried out against our positions in the Borcolo sector and as far as the Aspach valley as well as in the Dolomites, north of the Peldegrino valley, in the Marmolaka district and on the front in the Carinthian Alps. The Seebach and Rainer sectors were also under fire. In the Seebach valley the Italians attacked but were repulsed."

Attacks Repulsed, Says Berlin Report

By International News Service.

Berlin, July 18.—The repulse of attacks against the Germans on the Somme front was reported in the official report issued by the German War Office today. A German patrol entered an English trench east of Vermelles, capturing five officers and eleven men.

On the eastern front attacks by the Russians in the Riga sector were without result.

The official communication follows:

"West front—At numerous points on the northern front enemy patrols were repulsed before the defences of the Germans. A German patrol entered an English trench east of Vermelles, capturing one officer, four non-commissioned officers and eleven men.

"On both sides of the Somme there was artillery preparation throughout the day. In the evening strong attacks were made against Foleres and the position eastward, as well as against the line of Biaches. Maisonnette, Barleus and Syecourt. Everywhere the enemy was repulsed with heavy losses.

"In the Meuse sector there were lively artillery firing and small combats with hand grenades.

"East front—Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: The Russians continued to make strong attacks south and southeast of Riga which broke down with bloody losses before our positions. At places where the Russians succeeded in entering our trenches they were afterwards ejected by counter-attacks.

"Army group of Prince Leopold of Bavaria—There were no special incidents.

"Army group of General von Linsengen—The situation is generally unchanged. Russian attacks west and southwest of Lutsk were flatly repulsed.

"Army groups of General von Bothmer—There were only small foreground fights."

Report Kaiser Calls Von Hindenburg West

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, July 18.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg, commander of the northern group of German armies in the Russian theatre, has been summoned to the west front for a council of war with the Kaiser and General von Falkenhayne, chief of the German general staff, says a dispatch from Berlin today.

WAR SUMMARY

The French announce today that the Germans, with heavy reinforcements, have attacked the French lines at Biaches and Hill 97, south of Peronne.

This is on the lower angle of the French salient thrust toward Peronne. The French admit German successes at some points.

The full effect of this German attack cannot yet be judged. It may or may not be important.

The British announced as "gains" yesterday the capture of points behind the lines to which they had previously attained.

The "gains" and "captures" were thus shown by the map to be merely consolidations of their positions.

The real test of the British offensive is soon to come, for the offensive has reached in some spots the German third line of defence. When the British have captured that third line, they will have penetrated the original defences of the Germans.

If then the whole German line in the vicinity is easily crumpled up or falls back, the allied drive may hope to be a success.

But if the line still holds, if after the third line is passed, ground must still be won foot by foot, then the allies have an all but impossible task to drive the Germans out of France or Belgium.

They have taken 35 square miles, with a loss—judging from the number of officers in the casualty lists—of about 50,000. They have 20,000 miles of Belgian and French territory to reconquer.

The French activity about Verdun continues, but the Germans say the French lost a little ground in the struggle they precipitated.

The Russians have driven the Teutonic allies back across the Lipa River, south of Kovel. They are now about twenty miles from Kovel at the nearest point, while about seventy miles southeast of Kovel their forces are in front of Brody, which is on the Galicia-Russia frontier.

Italian Front—Nothing of importance has developed.

ITALIANS DRIVE TEUTONS OVER THE BORDER

By International News Service.

Rome, July 18.—Italian forces on the northern slopes of Monte Pasubio are driving the Austro-Hungarians back across the border into Austria. The Italian War Office announced today that the Italian forces in this region have resumed their advance.

Furious fighting has developed in the Posina-Astico area, where the Austro-Hungarians have attempted by severe counter-attacks to check the progress of the Italians.

The following is the text of the official statement:

"Artillery duels are in progress in the region of Stelvio and Tonale. In the Valla Arsa we are gaining ground despite vigorous resistance by the enemy. We have resumed our advance on the northern slopes of Monte Pasubio. Lively fighting has developed in the Posina-Astico area, where the enemy fruitlessly attempted to check our progress by counter-attacks.

"Encounters of minor importance have taken place near Mesole in the Suganna valley, which resulted in our favor. The enemy shelled villages south of Strgno, setting them on fire."

BRITAIN WARNS U. S. ON U-LINER

Washington, July 18.—Great Britain has let it be known that she will hold this government responsible in the event of any losses to her commerce caused by the German submarine Deutschland.

This government, it was ascertained from official sources, will accept the responsibility.

Officials of the administration see in the attitude of Great Britain that the allies are disposed to make a serious test question of the Deutschland. It was stated here that Great Britain, notwithstanding the assurances of this government concerning the Deutschland, continues to insist:

1—That the Deutschland is a warship, essentially, and capable of using guns against British commerce.

2—That this government should rule that the Deutschland be not permitted to cross the three-mile limit submerged.

On these main points it is known the position of the United States is the opposite of the allies. It was reiterated here that aside from any question that may hereafter arise after the departure of the Deutschland, she is "not now a war vessel."

It is expected that before she sails the allies will be notified that this government finds no warrant to interfere with the manner in which the Deutschland crosses the three-mile limit.

The question of responsibility to the allies for any damage the Deutschland may do to their commerce, if she should attack ships on route, is too remote, officials say, to need very serious consideration at this time.

Officials content themselves with saying that there are many questions, some of them germane and some purely hypothetical, that may be raised by persons in this country, and in Europe, which must sooner or later be decided, in view of the Deutschland being a test case.

What is known is that the information obtained by Britian officials at the State Department concerning this country's attitude toward the Deutschland has been reported to Sir Edward Grey.

The next step, it is understood, will be either a formal note from the British ambassador, by direction of Sir Edward Grey, or a note handed to Ambassador Page at London by the British Foreign Office, setting forth the duty of the United States in the circumstances as it is understood by the allies.

The State Department would make no comment on the interview given to the International News Service by Herr Von Jagow, the German minister of foreign affairs, on the status and rights of the Deutschland.

This, however, took note of the two points he made. The first is that if the Deutschland continues to be held a merchant vessel by the United States, the State Department, to be consistant, must see that she is accorded all the rights at sea, which have been demanded for American and British merchant ships against German war vessels.

The second is that the United States in on record during the Grant administration to the effect that the "herding of warships of a belligerent on the coast near the entrance of a principal port of a friendly power does interfere with the trade of that friendly power."

Second U-Liner Now Looked for

Boston, Portland and New York are the three ports regarded as most likely to be sought by the Bremen, the second U-boat trader now believed to be nearing America.

Meanwhile the Deutschland at Baltimore is expected to make her dash for the open sea today, and some hope is entertained in Baltimore that the Bremen may go there.

A dispatch from Berlin today says: "The report printed abroad that the new submarine Bremen is proceeding to Rio Janeiro is erroneous. It is believed here that the report was purposely circulated with a view to eliciting the real destination of the undersea boat.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR BAY STATE SOLDIER

By BERT FORD.

Camp Cotton, El Paso, July 18.—Sergeant Frank P. O'Neil of D Company, Ninth Regiment, was fired at by a Mexican in uniform while on outpost duty near the Union Stock Yards last night and returned the shots.

Sergeant O'Neil was the first Bay State soldier to fire at a Mexican sniper since the militia reached the border. And as one of the best shots in Massachusetts he could have dropped his man but for the sudden appearance of a child out of the mesquite bushes as he got his range. The sniper owes his life to the little boy but will probably always attribute it to the poor aim of a "gringo."

HAS MARKSMAN TROPHIES.

Sergeant O'Neil lives at No. 32 Mill street, Dorchester. His family is well-to-do. He is well educated and twenty-three years of age. He has medals for marksmanship, among them a national trophy at Florida. He is one of the best shots in the Ninth Regiment, which is saying a lot with men like Captain Joseph F. Lawless to pick from.

On Sunday O'Neil was promoted from corporal to sergeant. On Monday night he was placed in command of No. 1 outpost when Major William J. Casey's battalion went on guard. Within forty-five minutes he won the distinction of being the first of the 20,000 militiamen encamped in El Paso and its environs to take a pot shot at a Mexican and with good cause.

Number 1 post went on duty at 7. It established its cossack group along the Rio Grande, and at their back was a railroad spur, freight cars and freight house. It was still light when Sergeant O'Neil and Frank W. Harris walked along the flat bank of the river, which looked like a mirror. Lightning laced black clouds that hung over the mountain range, and a full moon was trying to break through a rift. Let Sergeant O'Neil finish the story:

I was walking at Harris' side and was just about to assign his post when we noticed a horseman riding along the Mexican side of the river. The river is narrow here, as you see, and fifty yards nearer the other post you passed is a ford, opposite which two horsemen were killed by a band of Mexican soldiers in sight of Eighth Regiment outposts.

ALMOST HIT HIM.

Our post noticed a number of soldiers on the other side of the river before Harris and I left to establish the other post. We watched the horseman, who dismounted, crept to a bush and fired. The bullet whistled within a few feet of our heads.

I thought it nipped my ear.

We both dropped. I got a bead on the man and just as I was about to fire, a child and a woman and it may have been another man, they dress so strange down here, came within range. Fearful to kill the child I lifted a trifle and the bullet must have breezed the sniper.

Although it was a company gun which I didn't know the drift of, I was as sure of him as of my name if the others hadn't come into view. As I fired perspiration coursed down my cheek. It was my first shot at a human being, you know, and it felt queer. I used battle sight on him and the range was not over 200 yards.

WAS IN UNIFORM.

And what do you suppose that Mexican did? Jumped into the saddle and rode on his way as calmly as if nothing had happened. I kept him covered until he disappeared and could have dropped him but after my first shot feared that to kill him might bring on complications.

The first shot I felt was in self defence, but after we had him headed I figured things out and let him ride away. It would have been a simple shot for anybody. He wore khaki and was a soldier all right.

As a result of the large number of uniformed Mexicans seen on the opposite bank of the river at that point the shooting reinforcements were sent out. The men who made up number one post all right besides Sergeant O'Neil were, Lieutenant George J. Cronin, Sergeant Vincent Breen, Sergeant James Murphy, Private William Martell, Private John Battimer, Corporal John Riley, Private Edward Crowley, Charles A. Harvey and Frank W. Harris, who was as near the bullet as O'Neil. Harris lives at No. 22 Hawthorne street, Chelsea.

SEQUEL PUZZLE.

Night signals by Mexicans flashed from Mount Franklin, on the American side of the Rio Grande, to the tall of the Casas Grande range back of Juarez, on the Mexican side, puzzled the men of the senior battalion of the Ninth Regiment while on outpost duty.

The signals were exchanged with lanterns on the dot and dash basis. They were in a Spanish code that baffled the signal men of the Bay State forces. The signals were first noticed by artillery men at Camp Pershing. Sherwood Hollins squatted Turk fashion in front of his tent with S. C. Almy and Endicott K. Lovell of Battery A. They had been watching the moon's eclipse, when suddenly one of them saw a strange light gleam from the shoulder of Mt. Franklin.

Almy and Lovell are the crack heliographers and wig-waggers of the First Massachusetts Field Artillery. They are experts in the art of telegraphy. They could make out disconnected syllables that convinced them that the messages were in Spanish and not sent by Americans or in the interest of Americans.

Wig-waggers in the Eighth claimed they deciphered signals sent from Juarez Sunday night and that they made out one message which read: "Need salt meat" and another "Want field mass of this action."

G. F. Richardson of K Company of the Eighth reported these messages, which he said he had picked up. He was formerly connected with the Signal Corps.

Put Lid on Food Complaints by Militia

Washington, July 18.—While complaints in the food situation on the border continue to reach Washington the War Department maintained silence, withholding an official statement on the subject until more complete reports are received from department commanders.

The department took steps to silence militiamen complaining of the food situation and working to correct it, however, with an order prohibiting officers and enlisted men c the National Guard from soliciting funds to augment the army rations. The departmental order said the rations furnished the troops are "ample for all purposes when properly used," and added:

The solicitation of public or private subscription for the purpose of obtaining funds to augment the ration issued by the government to the organized militia and National Guard in the service of the United States is not favored by the War Department.

A letter from Brigadier General James Parker, in charge of Brownsville district, to the chief quartermaster at General Funston's headquarters was made public by the War Department. General Parker said no just complaint could be made against the quartermaster corps in the matter of supplies.

"For some deficiencies we are not responsible," General Parker said, "but we are very glad to have their wants filed before they could set up a howl."

War Department said no official suggestion had come to the department that the government should take over the Brownsville Railroad in order to get supplies to the troops. It was said an act of Congress would be necessary to do this.

An official statement was issued by the department praising the railroads for "moving shipments of freight with remarkable expedition." The statement added that "the co-operation of the railroads has removed one of the principal sources of criticism applicable to the period of mobilization."

The co-operative measures spoken of were those arranged by which freight cars bearing the army label were sent to the border on through freight trains without side-tracking.

Colonel Sherburne Appeals for Recruits

By BERT FORD.

Camp Pershing, El Paso, July 18.—Colonel John H. Sherburne, commander of the First Massachusetts Field Artillery, today paid his respects to the young men of Massachusetts who are sidestepping the present opportunity to enlist and see service on the Mexican border.

He said the militiamen who declined to take the Federal oath showed a poor example, adding:

"The fellows who shout preparedness and think it is time enough to respond when war has broken loose are about as sensible as the trainer who would put men into competition without training. It is necessary to prepare and harden men, and this session on the border will do it. It is a pity that more young men are not responding."

Colonel Sherburne's remarks were due to the announcement of officers who came down with the detachment of rookies that recruiting in Beacon was practically at a standstill because the impression existed that there was no danger of hostilities down this way and that it was too near the temperature of inferno to spend a Summer vacation.

Private John D. Williams of Battery A, who has been invalided and ordered home to Boston, is now in the care of his parents, Dr. and Mrs Henry Williams, who are to take him home when he is strong enough to make the 2,500-mile journey.

Troop D of the cavalry received 194 horses yesterday. The men of Major Schmitz' command began today to break the green horses, but with caution.

Begs Release of Guardsmen with Needy Families

Chicago, July 18.

A. A. Sprague, 2d, chairman of the Chicago Chapter of the Red Cross, telegraphed President Wilson, asking that all militiamen who have relatives depending upon them for a living be sent home at once.

Mr. Sprague offered to furnish the army officials with the names of more than 500 from Chicago who will be discharged under this request.

REPORT VILLA ON NEW RAID AND HEADED TOWARD BORDER

By WALLACE E. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Tex., July 18.—Villa's advance guard is riding on a raid north of Chihuahua City today and less than 150 miles from the American border.

General Jacinto Trevino, commander of the Carranza army of the north, who had up to this time stoutly declared that his troops were defeating the outlaws, admitted today that the Villistas had broken through and that he seemed powerless to stop them.

The Mexican telegraph wires, which had been conveniently cut during the defeat of the Carrancista troops, were restored in action today, long enough for Trevino to warn all garrisons of the approach of the Villa army.

From the neighborhood of Boquillas on the border in the Big Bend country comes a dispatch stating that one force of Villistas has already attacked and wiped out a Carranza garrison within twenty miles of the international boundary line.

READY TO RUSH TROOPS.

Captain Thomas H. Anderson and a company of the Twelfth Michigan Infantry are on duty at that point and re-enforcements are ready to rush by motor truck from Marathon to the support of the patrol.

The position of his advance bands places Villa in the unique military situation of having part of his forces behind the enemy's line and in condition to attack him on all sides at once. The presence of Villa has completely upset the State of Chihuahua and whatever semblance of law and order was held under the rifles of Carranzistas is melting away before the heat of Villa's advance.

The Carranza generals sent to overpower Villa continue to proceed with the greatest caution. General Matias Ramon, who is supposed to be making a direct attack on Villa in the Rio Florida bottoms, continues to send optimistic dispatches to headquarters.

Political parties are springing up with mushroom rapidity eager to take advantage of the turmoil and perhaps lay their hands on the control of the country. Most of them claim the support of Villa, which is the best sort of propaganda in Chihuahua State at present.

BANDS FOR PERSHING.

General Francisco Gonsales, the Juarez commandant whose departure from Juarez was announced yesterday by the International News Service, is known to have visited General Pershing's field headquarters. Ostensibly Gonsales is on his way to Madera to make an investigation of the seizure of the Babicora ranch.

But already General Trevino has made public his report of the Babicora incident, stating that the cattle there were not confiscated but merely detained to prevent the possibility of their being moved across the border without payment of duty.

There is still much doubt about the withdrawal of the Pershing expedition. Perhaps the best token that it will remain indefinitely in Mexico is shown in the fact that two regimental bands were sent in through Columbus to supply music to the soldiers.

REGULARS ARRIVE.

Two troop trains crowded with regular soldiers arrived here and the appearance of fresh regular troops arouses a good deal of interest.

Military authorities censored any information regarding the source of new troops or their intended posts.

The border in the direction of Arizona and New Mexico supplies its daily thrills. Chief among the reports from that source is the information that the Yaqui Indians are on the war path and sweeping the Yaqui with destruction.

General Elias Calles, commander of Sonora, announced today that he would personally lead a Mexican expedition to quell the Yaqui uprising.

From Douglas comes the report that the Mexican side is aroused over the shooting of a Mexican by an American sentry.

Vermont Troopers to Join the Infantry.

Burlington, Vt., July 18.—Orders have been received at Camp Governor Gates to disband the First Vermont Cavalry which has been recruiting at that place and all the enlisted men of the regiment will be transferred to the First Vermont Infantry.

With these men and the infantry recruits now at camp the number of men in the infantry regiment will be brought up to full war strength.

The number in the cavalry is about 475, of whom 185 are Norwich Cadets. Their officers have been discharged, but will re-enlist and on account of their cavalry training probably will be promoted rapidly. Those who go into the Infantry will be used in the headquarters supply and machine gun companies while a few will do mounted scout service. The cavalrymen with the recruits which have come in to the number of 100 will have to join the First Vermont on the border, as soon as equipment can be supplied.

The reasons for the disbandment of the cavalry are given as the scarcity of mounts and the slow progress made in recruiting.

PLUCK TWO CAPTAINS OF 2ND

By WILLARD H. DAVIS.

Columbus, N. M., July 18.—Two captains failed to pass the physical tests with their companies. Only two companies have yet been examined. The company commanders were not passed, neither were they rejected. Decision was reserved by the army physicians who examined the men.

Captain James Tracey Petter of M Company, Adams, and Captain Ambrose Clougher of F Company, Pittsfield, are the men. Both have seen many years of service and their defects, while not serious, are ones that naturally come after such years of service. The captains are excellent soldiers and are the two best liked men in the regiment. They have stood the gaff of the frontier without a murmur. It is not expected that their defects will result in their rejection.

APPEALS FOR RECRUITS.

The work of examining the two companies was completed late in the afternoon. It is estimated that the tests will not last over a week. Companies I from Northampton and L from Greenfield will be examined today. Major Ernest Gates, senior surgeon of the State, assisted in the examination of the men.

Colonel Hays today asked the Boston newspaper correspondents at his camp "on the border" to extend his appeal for more recruits throughout Massachusetts. The colonel is much pleased with the recruits the Berkshires sent him yesterday.

The colonel isn't the only one pleased with the splendid showing. The entire camp, including regulars, army officers and the natives themselves, have all spoken highly of the addition. They are a conscientious lot, eager to learn and not afraid of work. New Mexican sun, even around noontime, when it is flirting with the 115 degree mark. They were kept busy getting their new equipment together. Tonight they sleep on cots, somewhat different from their first night, when they laid their weary, rain-stiffened bodies on the damp dobe ground.

FIVE ROOKIES MISSING.

The rollcall disclosed the fact that there were five recruits less than the tabulation showed when they entrained at Framingham last Monday. It was learned that four of the men left the train at Dennison, Tex., while the other lad, it is said, did not even get aboard.

The missing are Privates Joseph E. Blake, C Company, Worcester; Edward J. Noble, L Company, Greenfield, and Charles H. Raymond, George F. Howe and Lawrence Russell, all of M Company, Adams. Colonel Hays stated that at present the men are merely charged with being absent without leave, but added that unless they report within ten days to the camp or to some recruiting station they shall be considered deserters and treated accordingly.

The regiment commenced again to supply the outposts and interior guard. The outpost guard will be established by Company H of Worcester while the interior guard will consist of Company K of Orange. From now on the different companies will act as a watchful for this camp.

Perley F. Allen of E Company, Orange, who was charged with an assault upon a superior officer whom, it is said, he attempted to beat with a lantern, was fined $10.

James E. Hughes and Richard Laporte were promoted from lance corporals to corporals. The following privates were promoted to corporals: Oliver C. Rabidoux, Armand Ruby, Raymond D. Ellison, Harold Rhodes and John H. Carlson. (Sixty-five words deleted).

Hotel in Arizona Advertises Rooms Are Bullet Proof

Hotels have advertised sound-proof rooms to shut out the noise of shooting craps in the alley below, sanatoriums have advertised germ-proof chambers for particular patients, but it remained for a hotel in Naco, Ariz., to advertise bullet-proof boudoirs for timid guests who thought they might get their anatomies punctured by Mexican bullets.

The Hotel Naco proprietor with the safety first bedchamblers apparently thinks it is cheaper to guard guests than to pay undertakers, doctors and settle damage suits growing out of the poor aim of Mexican snipers snooping around that neighborhood.

With red ink he emblazons his life-saving preparedness service on his letterheads, copies of which reached Boston from militiamen today, so that the public may know that a visit to Naco these turbulent times is really not a suicidal act.

Nine States Send No Troops to Border.

By International News Service.

San Antonio, Tex., July 18.—Ninety-eight thousand State troops are on the border or on trains headed for there. These militia forces come from thirty-eight States, according to General Funston, only ten of the States not being thus far represented.

The States which have sent no troops are Ohio, Alabama, Tennessee, Louisiana, Mississippi, Florida, North Dakota, Rhode Island and Oklahoma.

Owing to the War Department's order that the present force mobilized is sufficient and that no more incomplete units should be sent General Funston said it was probable that the missing States would not be represented.

Washington Sees Hitch in Negotiations

Washington, July 18.—The belief that a hitch has developed in negotiations between the United States and Mexico for settlement of the border troubles grew when no steps were taken to carry out the plan for the appointment of a commission.

The only activity on the subject manifested by the State Department was in denying a statement given out in Mexico City which said the two governments had reached an agreement and that an announcement would be made by the United States government. The only announcement from the State Department was, "Negotiations are progressing favorably."

Ambassador Designate Arredondo advised his government by telegraph Friday of the modified acceptance by the United States of the commission plan proposal. The Mexican representative has received no response from his government and no instructions to proceed with the negotiations.

PAY EMPLOYES IN GUARD UNTIL DEC. 31

Employes of the Blake & Knowles Steam Pump Works, who were members of the National Guard at the time of the recent call to the border and who have responded to the call, will, while in the service and until December 31, 1916, receive their full regular pay, and when mustered out or honorably discharged will be re-employed by the company. At least thirty days prior to December 31, 1916, definite advice will be given in regard to what further assistance the company then finds itself in position to extend those remaining in the service after that date. Pay, in case of piece workers, will be based on their average earnings, and in the case of other employes upon their usual wages or salaries. In regard to new enlistments to the National Guard, the company asks that employes contemplating this step first consult with it.

WITNESS CAPTIVE SHOT

By HARRY A. BENWELL.

El Paso, July 18.—The men of the Eighth Massachusetts witnessed the execution of a man by Constitutionalists just across the border from Camp Cotton.

The victim was shot by three soldiers a short distance from the stock yards on the right flank of the camp.

The shooting was seen by Corporal Gauley, who notified Lieutenant Hartshorn. The lieutenant sent a detail in command of Sergeant Bean to Post No. 1, which Corporal Gauley was holding, but no attempt was made by the Mexicans to cross the border. The body of the victim was wrapped in a blanket and thrown under a tree.

Chaplain H. Boyd Edwards, of the Eighth, today ordered a moving picture machine at his own expense. This is expected to arrive Wednesday and will be installed directly behind the officers' mess.

The mess was enlivened by the cornet playing of Lieutenant H. B. Dillingham, who is the mess officer. Previously Lieutenant Dillingham had played the piano along with Captain Harold Patten and Captain B. S. W. Anson. Major Harry B. Campbell suggested to Chaplain Edwards that the lieutenant be allowed to preach a sermon as that was the only thing he had not done.

The lumber for three battalion mess halls and two single company mess halls, together with the lumber for a platform and berth for the moving picture machine will be ordered tomorrow.

Sergeant Edward B. Hoyt of F Company, who is a Newburyport contractor, will have charge of this work.

Lieutenant William A. McDade of A Company, who is in charge of the kitchen this week, is meeting with remarkable success. He is feeding about 500 men on an average of twenty minutes. Tomorrow or the next day he intends to hitch some mules to the kitchen and drive down to El Paso with the cooks at work on the way. Then the kitchen will be taken out to the border and the outposts fed.

Consignments to Second Strangely Lost

Springfield, July 18—Consignments of armed motorcycles and equipment, being of their arrival at Columbus, New Mexico. The Connecticut troop train arrived and the men have encamped not far from the second.

It is believed that all reference to the missing presents was cut out by the censor at Columbus, and that this item was omitted to avoid necessity of explanations.

THEATRES

PARK THEATRE—Holbrook Blinn, assisted by Alma Hanlon, Eleanor Woodruff and Johnnie Hines is seen in "Weakness of Man," a picture which is more than startling, sag Mr. Blinn certainly lives up to his reputation as the master artist of the screen. It is a story of how David Rosecar (Holbrook Blinn) returning from a cruise of the world, accompanied by the idol of his heart, finds other plans have been arranged by his wealthy father, and like the dutiful son he wished to be, he married the girl he did not love. But "Home is where the heart is," and in a short time we find David working out a solution to the great problem. Following on the program is Tyrone Powers and Lois Webber in "The Eye of God," in five powerful acts. Mary Pickford is seen in the beautiful love story, "The Unwelcome Guest." Miss Billie Burke is seen in the ninth chapter of Gloria's Romance, entitled, "The Shadow of Scandal." Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew are seen in their latest Metro comedy, entitled, "Taking a Rest," and keep the audience in laughs throughout the picture. Madam Calvert renders selections which continue to win the audience.

VILLA NAPOLI—Record crowds flocked to the Villa Napoli at Nantasket during the warm weather of the past week. This delightful seaside resort has become firmly established as one of the leading Summer resorts in this State. Manager Alfred Di Pesa still offers a high-class cabaret and dansant in addition to orchestral selections of popular and classical compositions. The cabaret include such popular favorites as Ida Gunther, Madeline Buckley and Janet O'Callaghan, besides Luigi Mainero, an operatic tenor, who renders a program of arias selected from the best known operatic works. Then there are the dainty little Misses Eunice Warren and Marion Hincks, expert exponents of modern dancing, who divert daily in attractive numbers. The menu, needless to say, contains a long list of specialties cooked in the rich French and Italian style.

SUMMER BILL PLEASES AT KEITH'S

KEITH'S THEATRE—Amelia Stone and Armand Kaliss have an entertaining operette, "Ma'mselle Caprice," as the breezy Summer headliner at Keith's this week. It is light enough even for this weather, and for this kind of weather and it opened to a very good audience.

Julietta Dika, the Franco-American singing comedienne, had a vociferous reception when she sang some Franco-American songs or a Franco-patriotic character, one of which by linking Lafayette and the "land of the red, white and blue" was just inspiring enough to get a hand even from those not of pro-ally sympathies.

Sorelty and Antoinette presented a novel eccentric act. Antoinette is just what her name indicates—very much Frenchy. Sorelty is the "eccentric" part of the act. Young and Brown, characterized on the program as two clever girls, are all of that. Among other catchy songs and dances they presented "He's a Dangerous Boy," a parody on the popular song, "She's a Dangerous Girl."

John E. Henshaw, of auld acquaintance, entertained at "a vaudeville table d'hote" with Grace Avery, and made fifteen minutes very much brighter for their efforts. There was a very clever little play, "Meadow Lane," in which Noel Travers and Irene Douglas starred, with a capable little company assisting them.

Willie Weston, whose forte is character songs, sang some of them very agreeably. The Ward Brothers—Robert and Lawrence—entertained as "Bertie and Archie." The program concluded with a good gymnastic performances by "The Five Idanias," from the New York Hippodrome.

The Hearst International News Pictorial was, as usual, extremely newsy and comprehensive.

BOSTON THEATRE—The distinguished dramatic star, Lionel Barrymore, in his newest five-part Western drama, "The Quitter," shown exclusively in Boston, was one of the principal features of a big triple-headed show. "The Quitter" is the story of "Happy Jack" Lewis, a miner, who is chosen by lot by the miners at Paradise Gulch to marry a girl from back East. The boys show Jack the photo of an old maid, and he flees in dismay before "Glad," the pretty shop girl from New York, who has answered the advertisement as a last resort. The scenes that follow are full of action and thrills. How "Glad" falls in love with "Happy Jack," wins back his mine from the sharpers who have stolen it from him, recuperates his wrecked fortunes and eventually weds the man of her choice makes an absorbing play. Margaret Skriven, a newcomer to the screen, plays the role of "Glad." The big spectacular feature of the bill is a new rural musical comedy production, entitled "The Huskin' Bee," with a company of twenty-five people, in characteristic songs and dances. A genuine old-time hay rack with a horse is introduced in one of the numbers. The latest monkey comedy, featuring Napoleon the Great and Sally his mate, in new and uproariously funny outups, are also shown, and the vaudeville attractions include McLaughlin and Stewart, the man and the maid; the Ellis Duo, comedy musicians, and Henry Sperling.

MODERN THEATRE—This hospitable theatre has an enticing bill of well-balanced photo features at this week and, judging by the crowded houses of yesterday, the Summer weather runs second in the regard of the patrons. Virginia Pearson is starred by William Fox in his newest production, "A Tortured Heart," which was shown yesterday for the first time. It is a story of domestic intrigue augmented by evil gossip and heightened in interest by the romantic clothing of the plot. A country clergyman, living alone in his rectory, finds a little foundling on his doorstep. He prevails upon a wealthy unmarried woman to mother the child, which proceeding incurs scandal gossip. The girl is raised and educated by the woman and at the age of seventeen she is sent to a French language teacher. How she falls in love with a despicable character and her ultimate rescue from danger through the offices of the guardian make a development that culminates in a most stirring climax. Dustin Farnum appears in "Davy Crockett," in a Paramount production. In the part of the wonderful frontiersman of the early days Farnum looks and acts as all have imagined the hero looked and acted.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—At this delightfully cool playhouse Marcus Loew has provided a ripping good bill for the first three days of this week, and that it was enjoyed the large audiences of yesterday testified. George Bancroft and Octavia Broske, the latter being well known here as a player of one of the principal roles in "The Pink Lady," presented a delightful offering that virtually topped the bill. Carvo, the piano accordionist, may well be termed the premiere performer of this instrument, the most difficult composition seemingly offering no obstacle to its rendition. Marshall and Walton are singers and dancers of skill that is a revelation in the perfection attained in the art. The balance of the bill included Roth and Roberts, the Wop and the Cop; Kerino, the society clown, and his dogs of all nations, and others. The latest incident of "The Mysteries of Myra" was shown, and there was a Keystone Comedy. The feature photoplay was Gaston Leroux's "The Grasp of Greed." On Thursday the entire bill will be changed.

GLOBE THEATRE—At this theatre yesterday there was presented another of the all-photo bills which make up the Summer programs that are changed three times weekly, on Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays. That of yesterday was well constructed, there being features of drama and comedy, and short releases of light and heavy sort. The feature yesterday was Agnes Glynn in "The Love Trail." There was also shown the Pathe News of the latest release. The mid-week feature will be Gladys Hulette in "Other People's Money," and the week-end feature will be Louise Lovely in "The Grasp of Greed."

MAJESTIC THEATRE—"Where Are My Children?" that daring photoplay which is crowding this theatre four times daily, entered upon its third successful week yesterday, and as at every previous performance, the house was filled. The fact that there are four performances a day is becoming better appreciated, as that now people intending to attend the second performance of the afternoon or evening come in time for that performance and thus avoid waiting in the lobby or on the sidewalk. The play has made a great impression on all who have seen it, and educators, ministers, physicians and others are lodg in their praises of the film which teaches such a wholesome lesson in such an interesting manner. Although the topic illustrated is generally considered fit for discussion only in private, there can be no objection to the way that the Crusade of "Where Are My Children?" are placed before an audience. And these truths are especially interesting at this time, when the newspapers and the courts are dealing with cases in real life such as are shown on the screen. The acting in "Where Are My Children" is far better than in the majority of screen plays.

MEDFORD BOULEVARD THEATRE —At this theatre yesterday two large audiences attested to the excellence of this week's attraction, the musical comedy, "The Beauty Bug." Fred Carmelo in the leading comedy role, supported by a clever company of singers and dancers, kept things moving at a lively pace. The piece is replete with specialties, including the Old Homestead Quartette, whose programme of songs met with instant approval. Featured among the musical numbers are such popular song hits as "Dolly Dimples," "I'll Back," "Loading Up the Mandy Lee," "The Rocky Road to Dublin," "My Dreamy China Lady," "My Mother's Rosary," "Tumble in Love" and others. There will be matinee and evening performances daily throughout the week.

NORUMBEGA PARK—One of the best Summer vaudeville shows ever booked is being given in the open-air theatre this week. The Seven Corkers, who head the bill, present all the best features of old-time minstrelsy, interwoven with up-to-date songs and dances. Fanny Rice, who is the original human marionette, has an act that is interesting and unusual. Then there are Philbrick and De Voe in a comedy sketch entitled, "A Case of Sophiehes," the Three Lorettas in a comedy musical turn and Fred and Albert, with something new in the way of gymnastic work. Motion pictures are shown each night. The views in the Neighborhood Photo Contest are shown each night on the screen in the theatre, with a change of views each three nights. This contest is attracting much attention.

COPLEY-PLAZA—"The Pops" at the Copley-Plaza began their second week last night under the baton of Andre Maguerre. Despite the warm weather of last week the Summer Pops showed a steady increase in business as the public got acquainted with them. It is planned to run them right through the Summer in the grand ballroom of the hotel. There is an orchestra of thirty players, which is naturally restricted to a lighter program than those offered at Symphony Hall, but light music is just the sort of thing for this weather. It is possible to seat nearly a thousand people at the Copley-Plaza Pops tables.

BIG BILL IS MAGNET AT ORPHEUM

ORPHEUM THEATRE—Tempered to a delightful coolness by the efficient ventilating system, this theatre yesterday offered a bill of vaudeville that furnished a delightful three-hour entertainment.

What may be termed the leading act is that of the Countess de Leonardi Company, a group of singers that give scenes from operas and classic musical compositions. Not only are they excellent singers, but the manner in which the act is presented comes in for unstinted praise. The scenic settings are startling and of the extreme artistic effect.

The appearance of Joe Towle, pianologist and comedian, is of particular interest locally, as he is a Boston product. The reception accorded his act exemplified that he does not come of his honors as leading entertainer without right. Mack, Albright and Mack are a very clever trio of singers and funsters with a bright budget of catchy songs.

"In Mister Move" was the one-act playlet on the bill, a stirring drama that was alive with interest throughout its length. The balance of the bill included Ilert and Lottie Walton, charming singers and dancers; Adonis, a ring and contortion artist; Rucker and Winifred, and others. The Pathe News was shown with latest views from the border with the soldier boys, and other items of stirring interest, and a Keystone comedy was presented. The photo feature was Douglas Fairbanks in a novel comedy, "Flirting with Fate."

BASS POINT—With the mercury soaring, there is no better place to get away from the city than at Bass Point, Nahant. This resort, with its promontory jutting out into the ocean, where it is always cool and delightful, is certainly the best place to go on a hot Summer's day. The sail down the harbor itself and across the bay is certainly a treat. Steamers leave Bay Line wharf at frequent intervals during the day and evening. Last boat back from Bass Point at 9:45 p. m. Steamers also leave Ocean Pier, Revere Beach, to Bass Point, on nearly a half-hourly schedule during the day and evening.

REVERE BEACH—Now that the Summer season is really on the rule of fun at Revere Beach is exercising a potent appeal. The Pit, the rides, the side shows, the merry-go-rounds, the various ball rooms and the numerous refreshment resorts make a trip along the boulevard very amusing, while the unequalled bathing facilities from the great State Bath House on make Revere superior to any beach on the coast. Incidentally the number of bathers who go in at Revere seems to have increased rather than diminished since the shark scare started.

Gates Seeks Senate Seat.

Franklin, Vt., July 18.—Governor Charles W. Gates has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for United States Senator at the primary in September.

BRAVES FIELD—The fireworks at Braves Field are coming to be an institution. The third display of the season will occur at the mammoth concrete baseball park tomorrow night. Upon this occasion more than $4,500 worth of striking pieces will be set off and the show will surpass even that of July 4. The Braves Field fireworks are the biggest display ever sent up in this part of the country.

BABY "CHAMPS" IN BIG CONTEST TOMORROW

All set for the "Baby Finals."

Vernon Keech Scouts of Caribou, Me., winner of the "Best Baby" Contest for all New England, outside of Greater Boston, has arrived in town. He is quartered at the Copley-Plaza getting in shape for the grand contest tomorrow.

The New England "champ" and his entire training camp is full of confidence.

Tomorrow Vernon meets in final competition Harold Benedict McDonald of No. 286 Concord avenue, Cambridge, who won the "Best Baby" contest for Greater Boston.

A CLOSE CONTEST.

Tomorrow's competition is to settle the all-New England championship. The winner will be eligible for the National Baby Contest, which is being conducted by the Hearst newspapers.

Vernon, the infant wonder from Caribou, Me., arrived here in loving care of his mamma and his aunt, Mrs. Fair.

The Greater Boston "champ" and the New England "champ" will be matched before the medical board of judges tomorrow afternoon. As each contestant is a baby marvel, the contest is bound to be close.

It may be so close that the judges will be hard put to make a decision. Readers will recall that, when the choice for a winner in the New York baby contest had narrowed down to two contestants the judges were really "stumped" to choose between the two. Finally one whimpered and the other received the prize.

Harold McDonald, the Greater Boston winner, is in the pink of condition, ready for any and all-comers.

IN FINE FETTLE.

But reports today from Mamma Seucia and Aunty Fair, in charge of the Scoucia training quarters at the Copley-Plaza, showed that the challenger from Caribou was in great infantile fettle.

The trip in the hot weather did not upset him. He took to Boston air like a native son. He looked out from his hotel window on Copley Square and said: "Goo-goo," which was meant, of course, for "Good-good." Then he demanded a cake of ice, or words to that effect, and so was taken out for a motor spin.

The result of the final contest tomorrow for the All New England championship will be announced in next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN.

FIND MORE BODIES IN SOUTHERN FLOOD

By International News Service.

Raleigh, N. C., July 18.—Rain fell for several hours today in the mountain districts, further swelling the raging rivers which, with their flood waters, have drowned a score of persons, caused nearly $20,000,000 damage and made thousands homeless, but bright sunshine succeeded the rain and a steady recession of the flood is expected.

Several bodies that had been washed down during the night were found on the lowlands today. Among them were two children, a boy and a girl, clasped to each other's arms. There was nothing to identify the little ones.

FIND HOLES IN HULL OF THE CHISHOLM

Divers completed today their examination of the hull of the steam collier William Chisholm, which ran on the rip-rap of the Cape Cod Canal east of Bourne and which now blocks part of the fairway of this maritime short-cut. The divers found holes on the port side and bow of the Chisholm, but this damage can be repaired after the vessel is relieved of some of its cargo of 2,400 tons of soft coal.

Work of lightering the cargo began today and will be rushed day and night. Schooners, tugs, barges and other small craft are able to use the canal now.

TWELVE MORE PARALYSIS CASES REPORTED IN MASSACHUSETTS

Twelve additional cases of infantile paralysis, one of which was fatal were reported to the State Board of Health, bringing the total number of cases now in the State to forty-two.

The death, the third caused in Massachusetts by the recent onslaught of the dread disease, occurred in North Adams, where four other cases were reported today.

The dead baby is Lawrence Cowell, nineteen months old. He lived next door to the house in which a nine-year-old boy from Brooklyn, N. Y., died suddenly a week ago.

The other North Adams cases are three-year-old Helen Tarsan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Tarsan, and the three children of Mr. and Mrs. William Gallon of Brooklyn, N. Y. They are Helen, aged seven; Mary, five and William, Jr., three. They are visiting their grandfather, Charles B. Speare, official of the Blackington mills.

The North Adams Board of Health is taking every means to prevent further spread of the epidemic and is working under the direction of Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, State health officer in western Massachusetts.

The Brooklyn boy who died in North Adams a week ago was Raymond Budelski. His death at the time was said to be due to gastric trouble, caused by eating green apples. No autopsy was performed.

Other cases reported to the State Board of Health today were as follows: New Bedford, three; Worcester, two; Dartmouth, one; Pittsfield, one. The town having the largest number of cases in proportion to population is Westfield, with six cases.

Many New Cases in New York City

By International News Service.

New York, July 18.—Infantile paralysis showed a sudden and marked increase today in figures issued by the health department, proving unfounded the hope that the crisis of the epidemic had been passed. One hundred and twenty-one new cases and 26 deaths were announced as compared with 95 cases and 14 deaths yesterday.

The deaths that have occurred in the epidemic now number 426 and the cases total 3,178. As has been the case previously, Brooklyn reported the greatest ravages by the disease, eighteen deaths and 83 cases being in that borough.

Discovery that previous regulations affecting families in which there are children stricken with infantile paralysis have been broken in many instances has led the authorities to adopt more drastic methods in fighting the plague. When the epidemic began here the health department permitted children to remain in their own homes provided they were kept in one room and attended by a trained nurse. Now the authorities are urging parents to send the afflicted children to hospitals.

This is believed to be due to complaints that whole neighborhoods have been endangered by careless disregard of the regulations. Previously the police department has been powerless to act, but patrolmen are now being given authority to enforce the rules.

"DRYS" MAY NAME SULZER OR HANLEY

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

St. Paul, Minn., July 18.—The Prohibition presidential situation apparently had simmered down today to a contest between William Sulzer of New York and J. Frank Hanley of Indiana, both former Governors of their respective States.

Ex-Governor Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts, who was looked upon as one of the strongest candidates, has decided not to make the race according to messages from the East by leaders here today.

The proposed fusion of the drys and Colonel John M. Parker's orphaned Progressives was still on the air today. It was expected that a great number of disgruntled Progressives would attend the convention which opens tomorrow, but so far they had failed to materialize.

The only Progressive visible was Colonel J. M. Ingersoll, committeeman from Idaho, but he was a Prohibitionist before he attached himself to the banner of Colonel Roosevelt, and his presence is more in the nature of a prodigal son's return.

REPORT McADOO TO QUIT CABINET

Washington, July 18.—Official circles were stirred today by a report that Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo is to resign from the cabinet to accept an appointment as Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, succeeding Governor Charles S. Hamlin.

Secretary McAdoo could not be reached and Governor Hamlin was out of the city, so it was impossible to obtain official verification of the report.

The term of Governor Hamlin expires August 1. His successor will be given a term of ten years. Members of the Federal Reserve Board receive the same salary as cabinet officers, $12,000 a year. The latter is one of the most sought and most highly prized in the gift of the Government.

JAIL FOR PAIR THAT STOLE AUTO

Jerome Sullivan, the man to arrest whom Patrolman George Kelley of the Hyde Park police station leaped into the Neponset River fully clad, was sentenced to one year at Deer Island yesterday by Judge Hayden in the Roxbury court. Sullivan, together with George Lawrence, was convicted of the larceny of an automobile owned by Dr. Ida Brawerty of Max Posner of Humboldt avenue. Lawrence was sentenced to Concord reformatory.

AUTO PATROL IN CRASH WITH CAR

The Revere auto patrol, on the way to the Chelsea court with a load of prisoners today, collided with a street car at Chelsea square and Broadway. Car and patrol were somewhat damaged and the prisoners were jolted and frightened, but no one was hurt.

Hairs Will Vanish After This Treatment

(Toilet Helps)

You can keep your skin free from hair or fuzz by the occasional use of plain delatone and in using it you need have no fear of marring or injuring the skin. A thick paste is made by mixing some of the powdered delatone with water. Then spread on the hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and all traces of hair have vanished. Be careful, however, to get real delatone. —Advertisement.

FINE EXPERIENCE WITH PLANT JUICE

Quincy Man Relates How the New Stomach Medicine Restored His Health.

A great specialist at one time compared the human system to a delicate piece of machinery, saying: The first need cleaning, the valves re-adjusting the shafts oiling and the drive-wheel more energy."

"Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, recently introduced here, may be likened to the human repair shop. It puts the stomach, the keystone of the human system, in perfect repair, causing it to digest the food perfectly, corrects constipation, purifies the blood, eliminates the uric acid, the cause of rheumatism, opens the skin pores and helps put the bowels and cleanses the system. It stimulates the kidneys and puts a wholesale ban on poisons performing its proper functions, thereby keeping the foundation for a new lease of life.

"That Plant Juice is doing this work and doing it well it is only necessary to read the testimonials of grateful people who have been benefited day by day people are coming forward with unsolicited testimonials regarding this truly remarkable preparation.

One of the most recent is that of Mr. W. C. Barrett, who lives at No. 1 Washington street, Quincy. Mr. Barrett is a marine pattern maker by occupation and employed by one of the largest firms in this city, who is also prominent in labor circles. He said:

"For 25 years I have been troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia, and always found it necessary to be very careful and used gas to permeate through my entire system. I was told that I had a severe catarrh of the stomach and had to go on the hospital list for treatment, but to no permanent relief. I had headaches, dizziness, nervous spells and could never sleep at night. I read in the papers what Plant Juice was doing for so many home people, so I got a bottle and began to take it. I am glad to say publicly that three bottles have entirely cured me. I can say anything and not have no more trouble with my stomach. I sleep well and feel like working now. I certainly feel that I owe Plant Juice this public statement for what it has done for me."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton Store, where he is daily meeting the local public and explaining and introducing the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

Delegates Throng City for Opening of Hibernian Convention Today

tion today, including delegates to the two conventions with their families and friends, fully 25,000 visitors.

They came from all parts of this country and from many Canadian points.

MANY DELEGATES ATTEND.

They had a first chance to get acquainted at the ball at the Copley-Plaza last night, when there was a reception and an opportunity to meet the more distinguished guests of the convention.

The Copley-Plaza was the rallying ground for the delegates. The lobbies, committee rooms and convention hall swarmed with them.

Most of them were a badge designating their "home town," and in many cases this badge was combined with Irish green and with the Stars and Stripes.

After the mass of this morning the joint convention of the A. O. H. and of the ladies' auxiliary was called to order by Francis J. Horgan, chairman of the executive committee.

The convention opened promptly at noon. Fred J. McLaughlin, president of the Suffolk County A. O. H., took the chair as the presiding officer.

The first meeting of the convention, in the Copley-Plaza, was called to order by Hon. Francis J. Horgan. He then introduced Fred J. McLaughlin, vice president of the Suffolk A. O. H., who is to act as permanent chairman of the gathering.

Chairman McLaughlin referred to Boston as the greatest city in the world and also as the greatest Irish city in the world. He then introduced Governor McCall.

ADDRESS BY M'CALL.

The Governor praised the Irish people for what they have done for the United States. He ended his address by saying:

"I rather prefer to think of Boston as an American city, for whether you are Irish or not you are American citizens."

Mayor Curley was the next speaker. He said in part:

"The Irish race has done more for the advancement of American ideals than any other race. The splendid spirit is shown by reason of the fact that in spite of seven centuries of persecution, in this country they have strength enough to strike another blow.

"We may consider the Irish merely as a hot-headed and narrow, but if the Americans who engaged in the Revolutionary War had been defeated their efforts would have been unwise.

"Boston was at one time Puritanical. Today it is Yankee, that is, genuine Yankee, and thank God the largest percentage is Irish Yankee."

OUTING AT NANTASKET.

The afternoon program consisted of a trip to Nantasket, with a moonlight sail back to the city. For this purpose a steamer was chartered for the trip. Many of the visitors from the inland points are making their first visit to Boston and never saw salt water.

Automobiles were used today to transport the guests from the Copley-Plaza to the wharf. Through the courtesy of Fire Commissioner Grady the visitors had an opportunity of viewing a fire-fighting demonstration on the part of the fireboats of the department.

Radiating from the Copley-Plaza in every direction, the delegates and their friends were busy exploring Boston and its suburbs today. Revere Beach attracted many, and not even the fears of the shark prevented many of the men and young women from entering the water for a swim.

MANY VISIT HARVARD.

Others visited Concord, Lexington and Cambridge. A walk was taken through the Harvard yard and the college buildings inspected.

It was a tired, but happy, crowd that awakened this morning, for a fine procession of the delegates and their friends were present at the ball at the Copley Plaza last night.

WALTHAM FOR MACHINE VOTING

Waltham is the first city in Massachusetts to adopt the voting machine for use at the Fall primaries and elections. At last night's meeting the Waltham Board of Aldermen voted to use the American voting machine.

MANIAC FIGHTS POLICE; 7 KILLED

dreds of shots were fired into the house.

There came a lull in the firing from the besieged pair and a charge was ordered. Policeman Dean was shot as the police gained the door and Crabtree was shot through the arm and neck as he carried Dean's body away.

It was then that Captain Westbrook decided to dynamite the house. A can of gasoline was fired in front to attract the attention of the defenders and six sticks of dynamite were exploded at the rear. This tore down part of the building and then two more charges were set off in rapid succession. They completely demolished the building.

McIntosh had not been killed in the explosion and poked his head above a bit of ruins long enough to permit Policeman Hughes to shot him several times, death resulting soon after.

In the ruins of the house the police found a large-sized picture of Villa.

STARTED IN WOMEN'S FEUD.

The shooting resulted from a feud between McIntosh's wife and the white wife of John Bedford, next door. Mrs. Bedford's husband yesterday sought a warrant for McIntosh's arrest following a quarrel. Mrs. Bedford says the minute she stepped out of the house this morning Mrs. McIntosh fired her through a crack in the fence. It was this firing that brought Knox out of his house.

After the morning's battle was over, the police found a rambling, but well written, note left by McIntosh, citing Bible quotations and declaring he had been delegated as the saviour of the Africans in America.

RUBBER MEN ON OUTING AT LOWELL

By J. C. KERRIGON.

The largest and most truly national event of a social character that the rubber industry has ever planned is now being enjoyed by the members of the Rubber Club of America in this city. It is the first time in history that the rubber industry of the East and West have united under one name and enjoyed festivities devoid of business. The affair has brought together the recognized leaders of the rubber industry of America.

The Rubber Club of America is international in its scope, and this outing gives the men an opportunity to get together on common ground, without business bias. It may also furnish an opportunity to exchange ideas relative to the best method of conducting business.

The outing was inaugurated yesterday when the Eastern and Western sections met in the Copley-Plaza and enjoyed lunch. President H. S. Firestone, head of the rubber company bearing his name, was host to all guests arriving and welcoming the guests. The details of the day were arranged by W. C. Heasley, the sales manager of the H. P. Goodrich Company, who has been in command since the Western delegation left Akron, Sunday night.

Yesterday afternoon, despite the rain, the members of the club enjoyed an automobile ride to Nantasket, where the Manoomono Hotel. Later the return to Boston was made.

The big day of the outing is today, when all the members will visit the Vesper Country Club at Lowell and devote the day to golf, tennis, baseball, water and other kinds of games. Some wonderful scores will surely be made on the pretty nine-hole course and some phenomenal submarine work will be enjoyed in the Merrimac River.

The Western contingent, headed by H. S. Firestone and W. O. Rutherford, came here strong. From the Firestone company came H. S. and H. J. Firestone, H. J. Smith, H. J. Adams, E. J. Kent, H. C. Ryan, H. W. Kugler, S. G. Clarkhuff, J. W. Thomas, R. E. Glass and H. S. Raymond.

From the B. F. Goodrich Company came W. O. Rutherford, R. C. Theisen, W. C. Mears, W. H. Yule, H. M. Bacon and H. K. Raymond.

From the Miller Rubber Company came W. Litchfield, Ralph Daniels, W. G. Shiltz, W. E. Morris, Chet Thurm and E. R. Stevens, from the Republic J. H. Lindsay and J. M. Cowan, from the Mohawk C. W. McLaughlin, and from the Pennsylvania H. W. Dupuy.

SUSPEND SENTENCE ON AUTO CHARGE

George Freberg of Quincy was found guilty of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor by Judge Brayton in the Roxbury court today. He was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction and the sentence suspended. Freberg was driving an auto back along Massachusetts avenue and collided with an electric car. A man was knocked off the car and forced to go to the City Hospital for treatment.

Humidity Rises to 95, with No Sign of Relief

PROSTRATIONS.

MAHONEY JEREMIAH, sixty-one, of No. 19 Olmstead street, Forest Hills, Overcome while delivering coal in Dorchester. City Hospital.

O'CONNELL, MRS. GLADYS, twenty-one, of No. 239 Eustis street, Roxbury. Overcome at courthouse. City Hospital.

A humidity of 95 was responsible for a great deal of suffering from the heat in Boston today.

Normal humidity is 70, and 100 is the maximum, the standard from which humidity is measured. A humidity of 100 means that the air is saturated with moisture and can hold no more without turning to rain. A humidity of 100 is the humidity of a cloud, or of a thick fog.

The temperature today was under 80 at noon, and slightly higher than yesterday, when the humidity was the same.

Worse still, there was no sign of relief. The Weather Man said the wind was easterly, but that rather increased the humidity than otherwise.

Wilson Goes to Capitol to Urge Child Labor Bill

By International News Service.

Washington, July 18.—President Wilson this afternoon suddenly went to his office at the Capitol and called a conference of Democratic leaders, with the avowed determination of forcing the 8-hour house of Congress to put through the child labor bill before adjournment.

The President's appearance at the Capitol came as a surprise. He had not taken any one into his confidence. When the Cabinet meeting broke up about noon at the White House the President, entered his automobile and left for the Senate without a word to any one.

When he reached his office in the Senate the President first sent for Majority Leader Kern. The Indiana Senator at once went into conference with the President.

Senator Kern was with the President about ten minutes. When he came out Senator Martin, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, went into conference with the President. "It's nothing to get excited about," Senator Kern said after he left the President. "I don't think we will have to revise our program any and I think we'll adjourn when we intended to."

UNDERTAKERS FIND BURIAL 'CASE' ALIVE

Great Barrington, July 18.—Edward Garrison was knocked from a fifteen-foot trestle here today by a freight train. Two undertakers raced to the scene under the impression that the victim was dead. They found him alive. There being no professional work for them one of the undertakers took Garrison in the fatrview Hospital, where he is expected to recover.

CHARLIE BRICKLEY IN COAL BUSINESS

New Haven, Ct., July 18.—Charles Brickley, former Harvard athlete, began to learn the coal business in the office of A. M. Powell & Co. here today. Later he will go to Boston to represent the firm in that city.

Marblehead Girl Weds Dartmouth Undergraduate

Miss Anne Marion Hansen of Marblehead, one of the prettiest young ladies in that old town, was married to Porter Hamilton Blaney of Peabody in Brattleboro, Vt., July 16, it became known today.

The bride was a student last year at Dana Hall, Wellesley, and the groom is a Dartmouth undergraduate. They met when she went with her brother—a Dartmouth man and Blaney roommate—to one of the college festivities at Hanover.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hansen, and her father is a wealthy shoe manufacturer. Blaney comes from an old Peabody family and lives at No. 32 Washington street, Peabody.

WILSON TO NAME "ARMENIA'S DAY"

Washington, July 18.—President Wilson was requested to designate an "Armenian Relief Day" for American citizens to contribute funds for the relief of Armenians in the belligerent countries of Europe by concurrent resolution passed by the House today. The resolution already had passed the Senate.

ADVERTISE YOUR WANTS IN THE BOSTON AMERICAN

VICTIM OF AUTO CRASH A BAY STATE GIRL

Providence, July 18.—It was learned today that Miss Anna E. Cushing of No. 26 Grove street and her fiance, Arthur E. Parks, a wealthy Fall River manufacturer, who were killed in an automobile accident yesterday at Plainfield, Ct., had planned to be married in about a month.

Friends of Miss Cushing said today that death may have come upon the couple even while they were in happy discussion of bridal plans. They were crushed to death when the automobile in which they were riding ran into a railroad engine at Plainfield crossing.

POUND WRECK AND BODIES.

How the accident happened is a mystery. Dispatches from Plainfield said that the engine was passing over the crossing, but neither fireman nor engineer had seen the automobile. The first they knew was a peculiar noise. Thinking something had gone wrong with the engine they threw on the emergency brake. Then they found the wreck of the auto and the mangled bodies.

Miss Cushing was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Cushing of Middlebboro. She attended a business college here. At one time she was secretary to Olney Arnold, late consul-general at Egypt. Then she became confidential stenographer to the Lloraine Manufacturing Company of Pawtucket. She left there last New Year's.

Miss Cushing was twenty-seven years old and had lived here six years. She boarded in the home of Mr. George J. Williams on Grove street. Mrs. Williams said:

"Anna was a beautiful young woman. She was engaged to Mr. Parks. They were going to be married soon. He called on her often and they went automobiling together a great deal. He called here for her Saturday noon. When she stepped into the automobile she looked back at me, waved her hand and said: 'I will be back Monday morning. Mr. Parks waved his hand and said: 'Goodby.'"

Friends of Miss Cushing said that they planned to marry in about a month. They went on a week-end visit to friends in New London and were on their way back when the double tragedy came.

FOND OF JEWELRY.

Miss Cushing was fond of jewelry. The police report on the accident noted the fact that fifteen diamond rings were found on the bodies of the two victims. Most of these, it is believed, were worn by Miss Cushing. While she did not wear all her rings usually, her friends believe that she had them with her on this trip, either because she wished to wear different ones when with her friends in New London, or because she feared burglars and thought it best to have her jewelry on her.

Heed the Warning if You Have a Cough!

The deep-seated cough that does not yield to ordinary treatment may lead to distressing pulmonary troubles. Or it may bring on a chronic bronchial affection. Many persons now incapacitated might have avoided such disastrous results by timely care and efficient medical treatment.

Among the latter Eckman's Alterative has an enviable record. This lime-bearing preparation which is easily assimilated is made Antiseptic. Where used in connection with nourishing food and proper living, it has given widespread relief.

Its freedom from poisonous or habit-forming drugs of any nature whatsoever renders it safe to try. And its content of calcium gives it tonic value. Sold by all Liggett-Jaynes Drug Store and leading druggists.

SHOE DELEGATES IN AUTO TRIP TO LYNN

Visiting and local representatives of the shoe and leather trades left Mechanics building this morning in automobiles provided by members of the New England Shoe and Leather Association and allied organizations for Lynn to Beverly. There the party were the guests at lunch of the United Shoe Machinery Company on the grounds of its Country Club, and inspection of the factories in which most of the machines used for making American footwear are produced. A ride along the North Shore completed the trip.

Sanfords Ginger

Relieves fatigue, nerve strain, weakness, and intestinal indigestion, the latter often the cause of sleeplessness. A panacea for ills incidental to travel. Always helpful and healthful.

A delicious combination of ginger, aromatics and French brandy for the relief of cramps, colics, colds, chills, weakness, nervousness and insomnia. Look for the Owl Trade Mark on the wrapper, lest you get a sham, worthless or dangerous substitute. Forty years the standard of purity, flavor and strength. Sold by all druggists and grocers.

The Folly of Taking Digestive Pills

A Warning to Dyspeptics.

The habit of taking digestive pills after meals makes chronic dyspeptics of many thousands of men and women, because artificial digestants, drugs and medicines have practically no influence upon the excessive-ly acid condition of the stomach contents, which is the cause of most forms of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The after dinner pill merely lessens the sensitiveness of the stomach nerves, and thus gives a false sense of freedom from pain. If those who suffer from indigestion, gas, fatulence, belching, blackheads, heartburn, etc., after eating would forget about an ounce of pure bicarated magnesia from their druggist and take a level teaspoonful in a little water after meals, there would be no further necessity for drugs or medicines, because bisurated magnesia instantly neutralizes stomach acidity, prevents fermentation, and thus insures normal, painless digestion by enabling the stomach to do its work without hindrance.

U. S. MAILS AGAIN SEIZED BY BRITISH

Berlin, July 18.—The entire first-class mail of the Danish liners Frederick VIII., for New York, and Oscar II., from New York, was confiscated by the British authorities, the Post-master-General of Denmark reports, according to the Overseas News Agency. A report from the Norwegian postal authorities given out by the same agency states that the mail of the liner Bergensfjord, from New York, also has been confiscated by the British.

MRS. STORROW TO AID RELIEF WORK

A large gathering of members of the Women's City Club will assemble on Thursday afternoon at No. 40 Beacon street, in response to an invitation from Mrs. James J. Storrow, to have tea with her in the garden at 4 o'clock. The occasion is to get together those women who have sons, husbands or relatives at the border, or who are interested to help in the work for the troops, to talk over the possibilities of what can be done.

WOMEN IN WARD CASE IN COURT

Rhona and Geraldine Pitfield and Margaret Stewart, who have been indicted in connection with the death from improper medical treatment of Margaret Ward of Peabody, were taken into the Roxbury court today on the original charges against them, on which they were first arrested. Because they have since been indicted on the same ringing charges in the lower court were dismissed.

WAKELIN MURDER STORY IS DOUBTED

Providence, July 18.—Chief of Police Kerr of Melrose, Mass., came here and interviewed Frank J. White at the State Hospital for the insane regarding stories White is said to have told on the steamer Ravenscraig about the murder of Loretta Wakelin. Chief Kerr is of the opinion that White knows nothing of the Wakelin tragedy.

Butler On with Welling

Johnston Entry Choice

By RINGSIDE.

Tonight's Queensberry production at the Arena, the twelve-rounder between Walter Butler, the Revere welterweight, generally rated New England's best ring prospect in all classes, and Joe Welling, the rising young Chicago battler, a combination boxer-fighter of rare skill, so runnells report, is apt to result in a whale of a battle.

For Butler it means a lot. All eyes are focused his way. Upon his showing with the loudly-touted Welling, a boy who has met the best of them in the lightweight and welterweight divisions, and who is ruling a top-heavy favorite over the Revere starter, he will be made—or unmade.

A good performance, even sans a victory, will mean Butler is no flash-in-the-pan and the Triple-A management can be relied upon giving him a further opportunity to land on Big Time. But a lurid lacing, with Walter not rising to loftier heights than that of a semi-final go-steman, will mean he must step aside and allow the boxing set to put some other entry over the plate.

WELLING IN ABLE HANDS.

Bressy James Johnston of New York has succeeded Lamar Lichtenstein of Chicago as Welling's mentor. The abbreviated Gotham impresario is exceedingly strong for the new member of his stable.

In Johnston's opinion, Welling is a better boxer than the redoubtable Ted (Kid) Lewis and likewise equally as hard a hitter. But whether he's the same skilled ring general as the Londoner remains to be seen.

This time a year ago it was a toss-up in Chicago between Welling and Ever Hammer as to which juvenile was going to land in sportdom's spotlight first. Both were proclaimed as coming all-round ring geniuses; the best fighting machines the Windy City had developed since Hon. Charley White came through.

JOE'S WORK OUT WEST.

The result was that Welling and Hammer were matched to have it out at Kenosha, Wis. Their ten-round melee is reported to have abounded in action, with Hammer a fair distance in front at the final bell. Welling has since claimed he was miserably handled for that battle and doubtless that's why he disrupted his partnership with Litchenstein and came East and entered Johnston's employ.

Be that as it may, the Hammer-Welling bout was a rocking good one and Hammer, the victor, followed it up by outstepping the Hon. Freddie Welsh in ten rounds at Milwaukee. What's more, Hammer is reported to have given Welsh a far worse drubbing than he slopped Welling.

Since Welling came East he has won all his fights. His most notable triumph was his recent kayo victory over "Battling" Kopen, a battler who has always been a sort of a jinx for Jack Britton, at Rochester, N. Y. Kopen was right there with Britton in a recent start, while Welling put the ballsing person out in the eighth frame.

DESHLER IS CONFIDENT.

Charley Deshler, Butler's manager, claims that his charge is in the best possible trim and is confident he will come through. Walter went over in great shape in his last bout at the Arena with Gilbert Gallant, giving the rugged Chelsea fighter just about the worst drubbing he ever received.

It is pretty well understood Butler and Welling are coming in at catch weights. If they are to make any certain figure, the Triple-A management is keeping the fact to itself. The club has also neglected to make public the name of the referee in the main event.

The semi-final will bring together Johnny Donovan, the promising South Boston featherweight, who has been on the ide list for the past six weeks, and Johnny Emery.

Emery is the experience? ringster of the two. Still, he has got to travel at top speed in order to land victor over the speedy South Boston rookie.

COOPER IS A BENEDICT.

Pillsbury, July 18.—Pitcher Wilbur Cooper of the Pittsburgh Pirates has been married to Miss Edith Warden Burge, aged twenty-five, of this city.

LAST NIGHT IN THE RING.

New Orleans, La., July 18.—Joe Thomas of New Orleans won the decision over Jack Britton, of Chicago in a 15-round bout.

BOXING BRIEFS and GOSSIP

Nate Lewis, manager of Charley White, jr. hard-hitting Chicago 125-pounder and heir apparent to the lightweight throne, has signed to put his classy charge against Benny Leonard, the New York ace, in a ten-round, no-decision bout in New York. Reports differ as to the bellsprouts Lewis sends, but the best is to be staged in the open in Brooklyn, while a New York dispatch has it Jimmy Johnston expects to land the number for Madison Square Garden. At last reports Billy Gibson had not yet signed for Leonard.

Tonight's Walter Butler-Joe Welling main at the Arena looms up as one well worth seeing. Butler, who ranks as New England's best boxing product, every division considered, has fought his way up the line in a pains-taking, honest manner. He has been built up, but not pushed along by the Blair Mercer and Deshler combine, drawing the big bookings, assuming there's any truth in Mack Sennett's statement a sound speaking to Gilbert Gallant.

In Welling, Butler is going against the toughest foe he has met to date. There's a mighty good chance that the young Chicago battler is coming through as the welterweight champion. So, it will be extremely interesting to see what fortune Butler experiences against him.

Butler is anything but a showy workman, which is the main reason he has been so slow in reaching the top, commuting from the wise guys. He is a pretty sturdy set of boxer-slugger and combination jingster and seems to be game with it. With Welling figured a hard-hitting tonight it will be perfectly fair to have the birth of a new Hub ring star announced, for whipping a battler of Welling's stripe certainly would make Butler loom up as a mighty skillful youth.

Howard McRae of Cambridge and Young Britt of New Bedford, perhaps the two best featherweights in New England, go to the ring greens at the Commercial A. C. tonight. They are to make 12 rounds of it, either George Lyons or Jack Hart the referee of the bill would be as fitting as ever. Lyons works at the new club's matches and the Friday night shows in the West End well deserves the capacity crowds they are drawing.

Tom Lally of Providence writes the AMERICAN, stating that Jimmie Dunn, the Brockton middleweight, is headed this way and especially desirous of getting on with Teddy Sleeper. It is Lally's forecast that Dunn is as good as they come at his weight.

Leonard Meets Freddy Walsh July 25

New York, July 18.—Benny Leonard, the bustling mauler of here, and Freddie Welsh have been signed to travel ten rounds at Washington Park July 25. That they have signed articles over here is seen as a decidedly bouncy cause considerable wonderment about town, for in their last meeting Leonard handed Welsh quite a lacing.

New York fandom has it figured that possibly Benny will be able to stop Freddie this time and thus acquire the crown, despite the no-decision articles. Leonard has but twelve days to get in condition for the mill, and as a result won't enter the ring in such fine condition as was apparent the night he and Welsh fought at the Garden.

On paper the match looks like a pippin. It should be a repetition of the last go, though Benny may not be able to administer another such drubbing. As previously mentioned, Leonard will not be in as splendid condition. In the second place Welsh, wise old veteran that he is, undoubtedly learned a lot about Benny in that bout, and will put that knowledge to good advantage next week.

Classy Field for Distance Run Saturday

Victor MacAuley, the ten-mile amateur champion of the British Maritime Provinces, who has defeated such well known runners as Fred Cameron, winner of the B. A. A. Marathon run of 1910, the lamented Jimmy Duffy, hero of the 1914 race, and who has lowered the best records of Tom Longboat and Hans Holmer, will shortly take up his residence in Boston for the purpose of smashing a "comeback." MacAuley, who is a young fellow, has never been away as a matter of fact, and his recent races in Maine stamp him as one of the fastest distance runners in the game.

MacAuley will make his first local appearance in the twelve-mile modified Marathon run of Division 72, A. O. H., at the South End Grounds, next Saturday afternoon, providing he completes arrangements with the firm by which he is employed.

Another star of a few years ago who will attempt to prove that he is as good as the cracks of today is Tom Kelly of Roxbury. Jimmy Hanigan, the New England cross country champion, and the sensation of the past year, Clif Horne, the New England ten-mile champion; Arthur V. Roth, winner of this year's B. A. A. Marathon run; Leroy Davis of Lowell, the Liberty Day Marathon victor; Dominic St. Paul, the Italian champion, and the other starters will furnish plenty of competition.

INVENT SPECIAL SPECS FOR GOLFERS

To overcome the tendency to move the head or sway the body while striking a golf ball, a pair of golf spectacles has been invented. The circular lenses are opaque; each has a small hole near the centre. The lenses fit movably in their frames. Each lens may be turned in its frame so as to bring the holes to a place best suited to the eyes of the wearer.

These glasses, properly adjusted, permit a player to see only directly in front of him. If he turns his head when about to strike a ball the ball is shot off from view and the player is forced to correct his bad form.—Golfers' Magazine.

GOLFERS WORKING OUT

Preparing for Championship Which Starts at Wollaston Tomorrow. Entry Smaller.

Threatening weather yesterday kept a majority of the golfers who have entered for the Massachusetts amateur championship away from the Wollaston links, where the title will be won on Saturday next.

Tomorrow the qualifying round is scheduled, the best thirty-two scores handed in being eligible for match play. The first and second rounds of match play are on the card for Thursday, while on Friday, the third and semi-final matches will be played. On Saturday the final at thirty-six holes will no doubt attract a large gallery.

Yesterday twenty golfers had a practice round. Nothing startling occurred in the way of low scoring by any of the golfers taking part except in the case of R. deZ. Plarce of the Pine-Burn Country Club, who got a 77.

Today the Wollaston links will be crowded with golfers getting in their final practice. Some of them no doubt will devote a great deal of their spare moments to some department of the game that they feel they are weak at, while a majority will play at least a round and some of them two rounds.

The field for the championship is ten less than that of last year, when the tournament was held at the Woodland Golf Club. Three years ago when the State championship was played at Wollaston there were only sixty-four starters.

This year all of the best golfers in the State are entered with the exception of several who qualified at Woodland last year. They are: Francis Ouimet, the present champion; Raymond Ouimet, ex-State junior title holder; Paul Tewksbury, John H. Sullivan, jr., Arthur G. Lockwood, Richard Lyons, Joseph B. Chase and Ralph Hornblower.

There is also a falling off in the number of entries for the Wollaston Shield, which is competed for annually. Up to date the Country Club and Wollaston have entered fourteen players each, while Woodland, which had twenty entries last year, is represented by but nine.

Oakley Country Club has only the limited number, five, who will represent the Watertown organization. All of them are good medal players and are expected to make a good showing. They are Charles A. Hartwell, W. Daley, W. F. Bland, R. W. Dean and L. J. Malone.

On paper it looks as though the Country Club players would win the Windsor trophy without much trouble. A number of golfers who have in years past represented the Brae-Burn Club have entered from the Brookline organization, which weakens the West Newton club to a considerable degree, insofar as winning the trophy for the eighth time.

Manning Wins Caddie Title at Oakley

Every year the caddies at the Oakley Country Club look forward to their annual tournament and the champion is rated as good enough to hold his own with any of the boys who carry clubs in the dual matches which take place from time to time, especially in the month of August, when meetings are arranged between Oakley, Woodland, Wollaston and Commonwealth's future golfers.

Yesterday the Oakley boys had their annual tournament with Charles A. Hartwell of the Watertown club serving in the capacity of Santa Claus. Mr. Hartwell donated three beautiful silver cups for the boys to play for.

Charles Manning is now the champion of the caddie brigade at Oakley. Yesterday he had an 89 for his medal round and the prize for the best gross was given to him. Joseph Malley was given the best net cup. He had a 90 for his eighteen holes, and with his handicap of two strokes turned in a card of 88. George Krauss, who had the fourth best medal score of any of the youths taking part, captured second best net honors with an 98.

DAVE CALDWELL IS DOWN TO RACE ELITE

Jack Ryder, trainer of the B. A. A., will condition Dave Caldwell especially for the Walter Scott mile at the Scotch games at Caledonian Grove, Saturday, August 5. Yesterday the splendid early form Caldwell has shown thus far this season, Ryder will spare no pains to have this splendid trophy occupy a place alongside the Hunter mile cup, which "Farmer Dave" won at the B. A. A. games last Winter.

In the Walter Scott mile Caldwell will be up against just as stiff competition as in the Hunter mile. Manager Tom Grieve will only allow the fastest milers to start and already is making plans to have Mike Devanney of the Millrose A. A., New York; Willis Gordon of Yonkers, N. Y.; Ted Meredith and M. F. Mahoney meet the local crack in the coming race.

ALLEY OWNERS HIT HARD BY TAX BILL

As a result of the new war revenue bill many bowling and billiard academies may be put out of business. The new bill provides for an additional $5 tax on each bowling alley and table. This brings the total tax to $15.

At present the alley and academy proprietors pay $5 to the city and $5 to the State for each alley and table. Business men are organizing to protest against the extra tax.

CARMAN WINS BIG EVENT

Long Island Flyer Shows Up Rivals in Race for Brassard Trophy—Fred Herbert in Front

Popular Clarence Carman, the noted motor-pace follower from Jamaica, L. I., finished first in the field for the Brassard prize, which means an income of $5 a day as long as he has possession of the trophy, before a big crowd at the Revere cycle track last night.

Carman had the field, which consisted of Linart, Seres and Walthour, shut out all the way, his nearest rival, Linart, being beaten a mile and three laps. Walthour was a half-mile behind Linart, with Seres far back.

All kinds of trouble to riders, pacers and wheels in the latter part of the race, first put Linart, then Seres, so far behind they never had a chance to catch up.

At the end Carman went by the bunch as he pleased. The distance was 43 miles and 3 laps, or 2¼ miles behind the record.

The three-quarter mile professional handicap was won by L. C. Rollins, Everett, who started from the 25-yard mark, with Hugh McPartland, Boston (100 yards) second, and Warren Holbrook, South Boston (125 yards) third. Fred Herbert took the five-mile open from Tim Sullivan and Pat Logan in 11m. 27 2-5s., while Michael Baxter, Brighton, and J. B. Rollins, Everett, annexed the half-mile and two-mile open amateur events, respectively.

Ben Earl Lands $3,000 Stake at Cleveland

Cleveland, July 17. — Ben Earl, a half-mile stepper from Omaha, driven by Marvin Childs, was the star performer of the opening of the Grand Circuit, winning the $5,000 Edwards stake for 2:16 pacers. He was an equal choice with the New England gelding Billy Dale, which was unplaced.

Goldie C. won the 2:07 pace after four heats. The Savoy won the second heat in 2:04, the fastest heat of the year, but after that tired and was beaten easily. The summary:

Kocher Causes Riot on Field in St. Louis

St. Louis, July 18.—Peeved over the loss of yesterday's game, Manager McGraw of the Giants is accused of having "picked" Catcher Kocher on Gonzales, the Cardinals' Cuban backstop, at Robison Field.

The mixup resulted in a riot call which brought a score of police. Governor Tener witnessed it from the stands.

Kocher boldly attacked Gonzales in front of the Cards' dugout during the eighth inning. Artie Butler caught Kocher under the arms and pulled him away after the fight had extended to the home plate.

Kocher began yelling "police" and some one in the stands sent in a riot call.

While at the Dayton Street Police Station the belligerents cooled off and the matter was amicably adjusted.

Browns Leave Tonight

Koob to Work in Final

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

Fielder Jones and his Browns are about to leave town. They have been here twice and each time have given the World's Champions plenty of trouble. During the present series which draws to a close this afternoon they have won but one game and forced the champs to a seventeen-inning no-score tie, but when the games have been studied closely those won by Boston were largely victories through the breaks, or the errors, in other words, rather than to any vast superiority in ability.

This is the final game before the Jennings crew with Ty Cobb appear for the balance of the week. Manager Jones has three or four high-class pitchers. The rest have not much to recommend them. It is really safe to predict that he will send either Wellman or Koob against the Red Sox in his effort to get the game. Boston has won two, lost one and tied one. Manager Carrigan will give Babe Ruth another crack at the Browns, and Babe is going good these days.

FANS STRONG FOR BABE.

The followers of the Champions are becoming very fond of this big fellow, for his pitching and particularly for the manner in which he fields his position and hits that ball. Babe was slow in getting into shape, but he is there now and no more willing worker can be found on the team than he.

The game should be one worth seeing. Each team is in fine condition and the infield work on either side is decidedly classy. Scott is playing as good ball as any shortstop in the game these days, and he seems to be getting his hit now and then. Barry is on edge all the time, Hobby and Gainer give first base all the attention required and Gardner makes some remarkable plays, one of this kind being pulled on Monday.

Larry isn't hitting the ball safely just now, but he is apt to cut loose any minute. In fact, the team has the appearance of getting in its batting stride, which, with the return to form of the pitchers, makes it look all the more like a repeat, which is the thing the fans are pulling for.

BOX HAVE STUFF.

Any team that has passed through what this club has, suffering the loss of a star, having its best men laid up, its pitchers frozen for many weeks, and still keep up in the race, is one that has the stuff. They look more like world's champions every day.

The present series has been notable for its grand fielding plays and these were not confined wholly to the work of the champions. If there is a better first sacker than Sisler, then he hasn't shown in Boston. This man digs them out of the dirt. No throw, other than a rank error, ever gets past him and he takes them from all angles and at all angles. His footwork around the bag is remarkable. He spanks the ball hard, and has suffered through the great work of the champions.

Maranns is a great ball player in every department. The hits that go out centre field way have to be more than possible hits to get past him. He covers as much ground as anybody not mounted on a motor cycle. Shotton is as fast as lightning on his feet and a sure catch. Pratt is a steady workman at second and Hartley's catching has been above the ordinary.

BROWNS NEED PITCHING.

A few more pitchers who can pitch added to Jones' outfit and he would break past a few of the teams that are now holding positions higher in the standing than his charges are at present.

Those who care for good lively, scrappy, clean-cut baseball should not miss seeing the Browns perform against the champions.

Of course the Pennant Race is buzzing and there is good reason for it. A glance at the standing tells the story of a grand race in which the Red Sox have more than a good chance to win. Those who lacked confidence in the team's ability are coming around to the side of those who took a stand and stuck by them, even when they were weakest at bat and in their pitching. No team composed of the brilliant players on President J. J. Lannin's club can be beaten without the most remarkable of races. This season's struggle looks to be one that will not be clinched too early by any club.

Figuring that the World's Champions struggled through about half the season in far from real condition, it is an easy matter to see where they will land, now that the twirlers look like real pitchers and their hitters are hitting the ball.

The Tygers' series will prove a corker. The Red Sox must keep hustling, for these boys appear to be rounding into shape for their battle with the title holders. Every Detroit series is worth while, but this one that opens tomorrow is of more than ordinary importance.

F. BAKER OUT WITH TWO BROKEN RIBS

New York, July 18.—J. Franklin Baker, the slugging third baseman of the New Yorkers, will be out of the game indefinitely, possibly for two months, it is announced.

The injuries he sustained during last Friday's second game in running against the grandstand while chasing a foul have been found more serious than at first thought. An X-ray photograph revealed that two ribs are broken.

Bonns, last year's regular second baseman, will play third until Baker is able to get back in the game.

Noisy Fans Hurt Game

Jennings Talks on 'Em

New York, July 18.—Hugh Ambrose Jennings, sometimes lawyer and now somewhat engrossed in managing the Detroit club of the American League, has a bone to pick with the fan of his circuit. Hugh Ambrose believes that the fan has not kept pace with progress in baseball. He declares that while the player has made marvellous strides as far as personality and conduct are concerned, the onlooker has changed little from the "good old days" of epithets and more solid missiles. Jennings unlimbered his verbal artillery before the doings at the Polo Grounds today.

Rughey was answering a question. A question as to why managers in the field of organized baseball allowed loud-mouthed, boisterous fans to insult ball players by allowing them to slather their profane comments through the grandstand and two-bit section without taking adequate means to guard it.

Not that Hughey objects to having a fan ride a contract alive. Not at all. "Stop a fan from yelling and making noises and you take the cover from the game," quoth he, his blue eyes twinkling. "Often after the opposing team makes a rally somebody will yell from the stand, 'How do you like that, eh?' and all I can do is to try and hold back.

MUST CURB LOUDMOUTHS.

"What I object to is this: A fan will get up and deliberately shout an insulting remark at a ball player—a personal epithet that has nothing to do with his playing ability or any act of his on the ball field. This can and must be stopped. Ban Johnson probably has done more to put the game on the basis where you can take your wife, sister or sweetheart to the game, knowing that she will be perfectly safe there, than anybody else. The players have done their share. But some of the patrons haven't done their part.

"They use language directed at the players that is not for any person to hear."

Whereupon Mister Hugh Jennings of Detroit and Scranton unfolded his plan by which baseball can be purged of rowdies in the stand just as it is being cleansed gradually of rowdy players.

"The evil could be checked readily if the owners wanted to do it. I do not know the guy [illegible] get who are stationed there, but I feel sure that it would not cost much more to have several plain clothes men in the grandstand and bleachers.

"Then," continued the old co-star of Willie Keeler, John McGraw and Wilbert Robertson and the man who piloted the Bengals to three pennants, "when a man said something objectionable he would be spotted immediately by the detective and escorted to the street, with a return of his admission money. Let the papers give publicity to such an ejection, if it should be put into effect, and the fans soon would come to realize that there is a difference between 'riding' a man and openly insulting him.

"Profane language drives away women from the game as well as many men, and it would be to the interest of the public as well as the players to have the thing stopped for once and all."

Incidentally Hughey placed the blame of the Tigers' present position on the crumbling of the offensive, the famous Offensive that made the Tigers in the same class with the ponderous Giants and the old Cub machine as one of the greatest road teams in drawing the fans to the parks. Although the pitching staff of Jennings' club was the thing that worried him when the season opened, Hughey said that now it was lack of punch with the war clubs and not poor pitching that caused the Tigers to fall back into the second division after repeated and most ironic with the onrushing White Sox and the humble Browns.

CRAWFORD STILL THERE.

Bobby Veach is due to sweep up beyond the .300 mark soon," continued the diamond tanned veteran. "Slumps worry him more than they should. Sam Crawford through? Not on your life. The old boy is good for three or four years yet and then some in this way: George Bugns is a good hitter, but when he doesn't get a hit for several days he worries about it too, just like Veach. Now when this happens I can put Sam on first, and he's a rattling good first baseman, and keep Burns on the bench when he slumps, and then when he does get back in the fray he can slam the pill with as much force as ever.

"My pitching isn't worrying me. I've got seven men ready to start on the mound now. Coveleskie, Dubuc, Dauss, Cunningham and the others. Dauss isn't seriously injured; never was. Just happened that he was near Youngstown and thought he'd see Homeseiter Reese. Funny how much Christian Science there is in baseball. The longer I'm in the game the more I realise it."

SOX NOTES

THE Champions are climbing. Now for the final game with the Browns.

A VOICE from the past—Plank and Groom.

THREE clean hits in the second inning netted no runs for the Champions. Leonard was sent in from third when Lewis drove to centre, Maranns' throw being in Hartley's hands waiting for Dutch.

CARRIGAN'S single was a hot liner just too high for Johnson to hold. It tickled his fingers, rolling for some distance into left field.

JACK BARRY has been the target. He has been hit three times so far in the series, twice by pitched balls and once by Hartley's throw.

CARRIGAN has his arm working all right. He nipped Miller by several feet when that gentleman attempted to steal in the third.

HOOPER stole a three-bagger from Sisler by one of the prettiest catches he has made. It was a long run back into centre field. This opened the fourth inning and Scott closed it with a one-hand scoop of Maranns' grass-cutter, getting him at first.

BILL CARRIGAN stole third in the fourth and he did it neatly. This didn't do any damage, however, as Barry hit into a double play.

LEWIS misjudged Hartley's fly in the fifth and it went for a double.

LEWIS' third hit was clean, bouncing off second base bag. But he proved sleepy on the bases. When Hoblitzel sacrificed, Sisler doubled him off second on a throw to Lavan.

HARTLEY and Lewis were busy men. Each figured at bat and in the scoring. The Browns' catcher stole a base.

Braves Seek Revenge

Tom Hughes On the Job

Cincinnati, July 18.—Having gotten one bad game out of their systems the several Braves wended their way to Redland Park today bent on avenging their defeat at the hands of their old chum, Elmer Knetzer. Art Nehf and Ed Reulbach having failed to stop the Reds in their mad carnage it would seem as though Thomas Hughes would attempt the job today.

And it seems most certain that Pete Schneider would be the man to take up the job for the locals. Pete has never caused the Braves any vast amount of worry and consequently they welcome a chance to get at him. Today they resume the task, which was briefly interrupted yesterday, of overhauling the Robins, who are about two and a half games in front.

Elmer Knetzer smiled his way through the nine frames and kidded his Miami mates time after time. His offerings weren't at all beautiful to look upon, yet the Boston bunch couldn't seem to do much with them, that is with any degree of consistency.

LEAVE FOR ST. LOUIS.

Stallings, himself, started the offday by sending Art Nehf against the Reds. The Reds may be in the cellar, and they may not amount to much, but they certainly can make southpaw pitching look easy.

That's what they did to Nehf, and after getting their batting eyes tuned up on his slants, they continued their slugging at the expense of Ed Reulbach.

FIELDING VERY WOBBLY.

The Braves' fielding was about as punk as the pitching; not so much on errors made, as in allowing what should have been outs, or, at most, singles, go for doubles. But the one bad game is now out of the Braves' system, so today they can go back to their job of overhauling Brooklyn.

Had the Braves been accorded anything near like the kind of pitching they have been getting of late they would have walked in yesterday, as Knetzer pitched a wretched game for the Reds. But it was a case of the club that played the worst ball losing by a 9-8 score.

It was a "bushy" exhibition. Hundreds of Rotary Club members, who live in minor league towns and are here attending the international convention of their organization, took in the game and were disgusted.

RUNS EASY TO GATHER.

The Reds scored at least once in five of their eight innings, while the Braves' six tallies were scattered through as many chapters. The Braves were a run to the good when they got through their half of the fourth, but the Reds forged in front in their section and thereafter remained in the lead.

After today's game the Braves hop aboard a rattler and hike on to St. Louis, where they have five afternoons to spend listening to Miller Huggins and his strategy board members. Stallings is of the opinion that he will land today's game, and furthermore that he will get away with a majority of the games in St. Louis.

If that be the case the team should be mighty close to the leadership a week from today, when they arrive back at Braves Field for a home stay. The Western clubs face them first on that stay and the Boston bunch feel sure that then they will go by Brooklyn and get so far in front there'll be no stopping them.

A Girl and a Man

Agnes Finishes Her First Day's Work and Answers a Telephone Call from Philip

By Virginia Tenhune Van de Water

CHAPTER VII.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company.

Agnes Morley had finished typing the letters Mr. Hale had dictated to her that morning, and she handed them to him with a glance at the clock. It was only twenty minutes of five. Then it would be possible for them to be signed by her employer in time for him to leave the office at five, as he had told her he intended to do. She hoped that she had done the work to his satisfaction.

She waited anxiously for a word from him, meanwhile putting to rights the various papers that had accumulated on her typewriter desk and cleaning the machine so that it would be in readiness for the morning. She could go home soon herself, for hours were to be only from nine to five.

She was roused from her musings by the telephone ringing sharply.

"Answer that, please," Mr. Hale ordered. "Say I can see nobody and am just going out. But ask who it is, of course."

"Hello!" said someone as Agnes took the receiver from the hook. "I want to speak to Mr. Hale."

There was a buzzing sound on the wires and this made the words so indistinct that for a moment she did not recognize the voice.

"Mr. Hale is just going out," she said. "Who wants him, place?"

Then, suddenly, the buzzing ceased and she knew who was talking.

"This is Mr. Hale's son," was the answer. "Is Mr. Hale there?"

As in a flash the thought occurred to her that probably the speaker had not known her voice because of the troublesome noise which had prevented her recognizing Jim. Without a word she held the telephone out towards her employer.

"Who is it?" he asked, surprised. "I told you to say I was going out."

HE TALKS TO PHILIP

"It is your son," she explained softly.

"Oh, I see," the man rejoined, taking the receiver from her.

She was glad that her back had been to the window, so that he could not see the flush that had come to her face. She was also glad that he did not notice that her hands trembled slightly as she went back to her desk.

"Hello, Phil!" Mr. Hale called. "What do you want?"

The girl wished that she was where she need not listen, and yet she longed to hear. But she started nervously at the next sentence.

"Yes," Mr. Hale answered a question asked by his son. "Then, with a glance at the clock, "I can wait for fifteen or twenty minutes. Yes, surely—we can go to it together on the way home."

He hung up the receiver, then turned to Agnes.

"Miss Morley, you need not wait if you are ready to leave," he said. "It is nearly five, and I have nothing more for you to do today. And I shall have to remain a while longer than I expected. My son telephones me he is downtown and wants me to attend to an errand with him on the way home. But you may go now if you want to."

She went toward the next room to get her hat and coat, but paused at the door.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Hale!" she ventured.

"Oh—good afternoon!" he returned absent-mindedly, then resumed the signing of his letters.

She would have liked to linger in the hope that he might say something that would indicate whether or not he was satisfied with her work. But she dare not do this. In the first place, she had no excuse for remaining; in the second place —and this was the more important reason to her way of thinking—it would be a mistake for her to allow Phil to come upon her here before she was sure she could "make good," and before he was suspected that she was in his father's employ.

SHE GOES HURRIEDLY

Hastily she put on her hat and coat. Annie Rooney managed to slip away from her machine long enough to say in a low tone:

"See! You're lucky, getting off before five! You've got a cinch."

Agnes smiled. "It won't be like this every day," she reminded her. "But I just happened to get done early this first day."

She breathed more freely when she was on the elevator, yet she was very nervous as she walked through the long corridor leading to the street. She almost ran until she was safely in the subway station, where she was to take the uptown train. She had succeeded in avoiding Philip Hale.

"But it was a close call," she murmured to herself.

Yet in telling her aunt of the events of the day, she omitted to mention this incident. Aunt Lucy might not understand why she dreaded meeting Phil in his father's presence just now.

When dinner was over, as aunt and niece sat together in the little parlor chatting, the lower bell rang. Miss Morley spoke immediately of the man who was uppermost in her companion's thoughts.

"There's the bell!" she exclaimed. "I was just wondering when Philip Hale would be here again—and I haven't a doubt but what that's him now."

"Very likely," agreed Agnes. She tried to speak calmly, yet she was trembling with excitement.

And then, as she went forward and leaned over the banister to greet him, the man ascending the stairs looked up, and the light fell full on the pale face of Randolph Pickens.

"The King of Birds"

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.

"NOT you," said Love with an eye to the aviary netting, and peering at the grim dark eagle with his golden eye cold with pride, "not you, though you have flown into the blue flare of lightning, have soared against the sun with your eye undimmed with its splendor, have built your home on the cornia's crest, where the wind lives, have screamed with fierce laughter at the humble aeroplane that aspired below you, and even though the Maker of birds and the man who tells about you in big books dubs you so, you are never King! A great bird stands on one leg with a smiling black eye warm and soft, down there 'a ways,' and he knows where the garden beyond the moon lies and mites of babies sleep in lily-pads. And he can go there and fetch them! YOU do not know the way there, though the west wind is your blood-brother. And the little couple pacing along there arm in arm—and on her little left hand, I am gratified to see, is the glint of gold and dew—they know that he knows. And they will tell you that he is the King of the Birds"

Biography of a Sinner

Mildred and Vera Have a Lively Time in the City With Two Young Men

By ANNE LISLE

Copyright, 1916, International News Service.

He had light hair which waved in spite of the fact that it was brushed back till it shone as if burnished, and steady brown eyes which looked as if they found amusement in a good many things. There were rather heavy crowsfeet at the corners of his mouth.

I was trying to decide whether they came from strength or bitterness, or perhaps even laughter, when Mr. Donaldson interrupted my cogitations:

"You can't quite find the pigeon-hole—can you, Miss Sheldon?"

I felt uncomfortable for a minute. That direct method of attack was my own, and if it was to be taken from me I did not know exactly how to play the other part of the duet.

"I'll wager you can't dispose of me a bit more easily," I replied, looking up with all the challenge I could summon in my eyes.

"I can—I dare!"

HIS DIAGNOSIS

"Dare away—I like daring."

"He either fears his fate or his desserts are small, who dares not put it to the touch to win or lose it all . . . ." That bit of rhyme about covers the case for little pirates on the conversational seas, doesn't it, Miss Sheldon?"

"Yes—and I'm ready to haul down my flag. Come on board the hostile craft and report what you see," said I.

"Eyed that are a challenge, lips that are an invitation"— began Mr. Donaldson and then hauled himself up short suddenly. "But what's the use? I'm telling you what you want to hear—what everybody wants to hear nowadays," he added almost bitterly.

I wondered vaguely why he had changed his tone of impudent banter and personality for one of cynical and tired worldliness. I made up my mind that Jim Donaldson had a story and I must get it. But I felt that unless I made a very special effort to charm I should not see him again. And I knew I wanted it more than I had ever before desired anything.

We had a wonderful lunch. Mildred took a cocktail as a matter of course. So I took one, too. I found myself sparkling almost like the dry champagne we had later. I didn't know anything about the question of sitting in a fashionable hotel and drinking cocktails and champagne over the lunch table. It was only a lark for me then.

At the end of lunch the man suggested a motor trip to one of the inns in the Hudson country. We might have tea and a dance or two. But in spite of the fact that my head was whirling and that the top of it felt detached from my body I had enough to know that I had better go home unless I intended to forfeit all chance of going to the Bankers' ball with Norton Gregory.

I wanted to stay and flirt with Jim Donaldson, but something cold and efficient in the back of my brain told me that I could not be at all sure of him and that Norton was decidedly the bird in the hand who was reputed to be worth two in the bush!

I began weighing the chances of making enough impression on Mr. Donaldson in two hours to justify me in missing the three-thirty train to Rockrooke and throwing the odds in favor of my going to the dance as worthless counters into the game of roquetry I suddenly felt myself capable of playing.

A SPIN THROUGH THE PARK

I decided I wasn't quite ready to risk everything at home for the chance of this gallant cavalier of New York, so I made a few pleas I insisted on being taken to the three-thirty train.

There was time for a little spin through the park first, and for powder and rouge and refreshing against my throbbing temples. By train time I was entirely myself, but I should not have ventured to follow them up with other dates.

My toleration of drinking and my love for power and excitement are a great deal—a good man's love.

Used Resinol for Bad Skin-Trouble Considers Her Cure Remarkable

June 25.—"For almost six months I suffered from a severe case of skin-trouble on my leg between the ankle and knee. It began by swelling, with severe pains day and night, following by copious blistering. My leg then became inflamed and later watery blisters and finally sores broke out on it. At the worst my leg was at least one-third above its normal size and the continual itching and burning sensation was something terrible. I applied many remedies, but gained no relief until I commenced using Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, from which time I began to gain by the first application. After a continued use of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap the swelling was reduced, the itching and burning were entirely relieved and a complete cure was effected, having used only three jars of Resinol Ointment and two cakes of Resinol Soap. My trouble sure was serious, and I consider the cure remarkable." (Signed) Mrs. H. W. Neefus, 825 Pearson St., Greensboro, N. C. All druggists sell Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. Good Housekeeping Recipes

Good food properly cooked goes far toward insuring health and long years. As much depends on the cooking, however, as on the food itself. The following recipes have been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, and are republished here by special arrangement with that publication, the Nation's Greatest Home Magazine.

All measurements are level, standard half-pint measuring cups, tablespoons, and teaspoons being used. Sixteen level tablespoonfuls equal a half-pint. Quantities are sufficient for six people unless otherwise stated. Flour is sifted once before measuring.

Cheese With Chives

One cream cheese, 1 teaspoonful chopped chives, ¼ teaspoonful salt.

Cheese Balls

1½ cupfuls grated American cheese, 2 tablespoonfuls flour, ½ teaspoonful salt, 2 egg whites, few grains cayenne, cracker dust.

Mix cheese with flour and seasoning, beat the egg whites stiff and combine with first mixture, shaping the whole into small balls. Roll in cracker dust and fry in deep fat hot enough to brown a bit of bread in forty seconds. Drain well on paper and serve hot.

Why Society Women Wash Their Own Hair

Few realize how many society women now wash their own hair, not because it is a thrift but because they wish to obtain the greatest possible hair beauty and be sure they are not using anything harmful. The thousands who have found that in washing the hair it is never wise to use a make-shift but is always advisable to use a preparation made for shampooing only, say they get the best results from a simple home-made canfaroa mixture. You can enjoy this, the best that is known, for about three cents a shampoo by getting some canfaroa from your druggist, and dissolving a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. Your shampoo is now ready. After its use the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its lustre and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth.—Advertisement.

To Overcome Sunburn, Tan, Freckles, Wrinkles

If your skin is unduly reddened, freckled or tanned, dab a liberal amount of ordinary cucumber jelly on the face and allow it to remain over night. When you wash off the jelly in the morning, the flaky, almost invisible particles of cuticle, loosened by the jelly during the daily, entire outer skin is absorbed, but so gradually there's no discomfort part or inconvenience. Even the stubbornest freckles are dissolved little by little, during which forms the new complexion in softness and youthful-looking, you'd marvel at the transformation. It's the only thing known to science that will discard an aged, faded, muddy or sickly complexion. One ounce of mercolized wax, procurable at any druggists, is sufficient to spread over the entire face, your brand to vanish, wrinkles and crow's feet. To overcome these quickly, bathe the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch Hazel.—Advertisement.

Not a Loafer

A few months ago a lady engaged a new servant, and having views on the question of "followers," she expounded them to the girl upon her arrival.

"Mind you, Jane," she said, seriously, "I will have no loafers about me. You quite understand?"

"Yes, ma'am," replied Jane.

Within the short period of a week, however, the lady had grounds for suspecting that her orders had been disobeyed, and Jane was promptly interrogated.

"Did I not make it a stipulation of your engagement that no followers were to be allowed?"

"No, ma'am. You said 'loafers.'"

"Well, you may have it that way if you wish. You were talking to a man for ten minutes at the area gate last night."

"Yes, ma'am. That's my chap!" said Jane, unblushingly.

"How dare you disobey my express orders in this way?"

"I ain't disobeyed 'im, ma'am!" persisted Jane. "George—that's my young man—is a faker, sure enough, but 'e ain't a loafer. 'E's a biscuit hand, 'e is!"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

AN ESCORT'S DUTY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Some years ago some young men made arrangements to meet some young ladies at some tennis grounds. The latter were supposed to have gone first to get the net ready by the time the former arrived, as they could not get away from business in time to make the preparations.

After finishing the game, when all were ready to come home, the young men walked home without saying anything.

When asked by somebody why they did not escort the young ladies home call five in the same neighborhood, they said that they had not escorted the young ladies to the grounds and were not supposed to escort them home.

Would you kindly decide whether these young men did the proper thing. THERESE.

WHAT the young men did was decidedly ill-mannered. They should have made a particular effort to show their courteous appreciation of the fact that the girls made preparations for the tennis game. And all the more since the young women went to the grounds unescorted and took the trouble to put up the net the men should have taken their girl friends to their respective homes. I hope they had at least the courtesy to do all the work of taking down the net.

YOU HAVE TO PAY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A young man, six years my senior, has taken me out several times. During that short time I learned to love him. I met him through a flirtation, which I know is wrong. Of course, the result is that he failed to keep a recent appointment and has not called since. Now, dear Miss Fairfax, I know that you will say that I should have nothing to do with him but I have tried that in vain, as he is always in my thoughts. DOROTHY Q.

MY dear girl, you seem to have an understanding of my viewpoint —and what is more important, of the common sense aspect of the situation. I am sure you will learn a great deal from your unhappiness. Recognize the fact that you blundered and are paying—and that inevitably one always does pay for blunders. Of course, a girl as sensible as you can forget a man who has wearied of her and whom she never should have met.

WHY NOT WAIT?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I was engaged to be married to a young man I have known for years. His sister, who is only six-teen, eloped and married a young man she had known for two years. My intended husband is now going out of town to stay with his mother and younger sister. His mother has only recently moved out of town and he says she needs him now that his sister is gone. She has means of support, however. Do you think he is right in giving me up for his mother? M. T. L.

CAN you not be patient while your fiance helps his mother adjust herself to the new condition of affairs? Or would it not be possible for you to go with him and live with his mother and sister for a year or so? It seems to me that compromise would save you from the unhappiness of a broken engagement.

CONFIDE IN YOUR FATHER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Would you advise me what to do? I am going about with a young man and my father will not allow him to call. He feels this and he is very considerate; he knows I don't like to meet him outside. ANXIOUS.

YOU state no reason for your father's attitude. Perhaps if he were sure of the young man's good principles and ability as well as of his attitude toward you he would alter his decision.

Helped It Dry

One day a Chinese philosopher was meditating in the fields outside the city of Tientsin. He noticed a woman weeping bitterly beside a fresh grave, which she was fanning vigorously. He was touched by her evident grief, and said:

"Oh, sorrowful one, what is your trouble?"

"Your Honorable Excellency, my husband is dead."

"No doubt he was a good husband, and you are to be pitied, but why are you fanning his grave?"

"Exalted one," replied the woman —and her voice choked with sobs— "my husband made me promise not to marry again until his grave was dry."

The Fine Free Show

The little man had taken his wife and children to see the travelling show. After viewing all the sights that could be viewed for nothing, the entire family lined up in front of a large booth, which advertised in bold letters on the outside, "The Grand Bill, the Best Show of the World."

On a small ledge in front of this booth a man was standing by himself, entreating all and sundry to "come in and see the show." Our little children was attracted by the little man, who looked earnestly and wistfully at him.

"Pa, you" he called. "Ain't yer coming in?" It's only a dime."

But the little man only shook his head.

"Can't," he whispered. "It 'ud cost me mor'n two dollars if I did. Yer see, there's me an' my wife an' twenty children."

What! exclaimed the showman, hearse with incredulity, and pointing to the long lines of earnest faces. "Are all of them yours?"

A nod was the little man's sole answer.

"Good heavens!" cried the man of the booth, as he bundled the in entrance. "Don't yer move, guy'nor, Just stay where yer are, an' I'll give the grand ole a treat. I'm goin' to bring 'im out to 'ave a look at you."

GRAY OR FADED HAIR DARKENED

permanently with perfect ease and safety. Wet your hair all over with Q-Ban, the new scientific hair dressing every day and expose it to the sun and air—then your hair will gradually and surely change to its original uniform dark shade. Absolutely not a trace of gray hair will be left and nobody can ever tell that it happened. Just think of that! Furthermore, your hair will be much more glossy, lustrous, soft and fluffy than ever before—and fascinating to behold.

The secret of this wonderful change in the color of your hair is mainly brought about by a process of oxidation caused by the sun and air—hence Q-Ban drying your hair in the sun and air after Q-Ban has been applied. Sun and air are Nature's own agents and a very important part of the Q-Ban process. Only in this way—with Q-Ban and the sun and air—can the color be permanently and safely restored to your hair. Make no mistake about it—all preparations claiming to instantly restore the color to your hair are fakes or treacherous dyes.

Q-Ban is made from a scientific formula of well-known drugs, chemicals, and perfumes discovered after years of active research and experiment by the greatest chemical experts in the world. Q-Ban is the only hair restorer that is used by the first application. After a continued use of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap the swelling was reduced, the itching and burning were entirely relieved and a complete cure was effected, having used only three jars of Resinol Ointment and two cakes of Resinol Soap. My trouble sure was serious, and I consider the cure remarkable." (Signed) Mrs. H. W. Neefus, 825 Pearson St., Greensboro, N. C. All druggists sell Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. MANSFIELD IS IN FIELD FOR GOVERNOR

Frederick W. Mansfield, attorney, labor leader, temporary nominee for Governor after the split Democratic convention in 1910, and State Treasurer in 1914, today announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the governorship.

The announcement was made in a brief letter to the newspapers, which read thus:

"I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor."

Over the telephone Mr. Mansfield said later:

"I have nothing to add at present to the simple announcement of my candidacy.

"So far as I know, I am the first Democratic candidate formally in the field.

"Papers were taken out today in my behalf from the office of the Secretary of State.

"I don't suppose I need any 'platform' in the primary race. Certainly I have not thus far elaborated one.

"I do not know whether or not I will have the support of the Democratic organization. So far as I know, I stand all right with the organization—and everybody else."

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks ruled higher in New York at noon after periods of irregularity during the morning. After the opening selling pressure by bears failed to bring out stocks in any quantity. The market improved a little during the first hour and was stronger and more active early in the second.

Gains at 12 o'clock included American Locomotive ¾, Baldwin ¾, Crucible ⅝, Industrial Alcohol 1, Mexican Petroleum ½, Studebaker ⅝, Marine preferred 1¼, Anaconda ⅝, Inspiration ⅝, Kennecott ¾, American Can 1, Reading ½, New York Central ⅝, Union Pacific ¼, and U. S. Steel ½.

Among declines were Butte & Superior ⅝, Maxwell ¼, Chandler ¾, Willys-Overland ¾, Utah Copper ¼, American Smelting ¾, Beet Sugar ¾, General Motors 2½, Southern Pacific ¼, Chesapeake & Ohio ¾, Lehigh Valley ⅝, New Haven 1, Northern Pacific ½ and Baltimore & Ohio ¼. Distillers and Chino were unchanged.

A New York dispatch says: "The tone in the late forenoon was better than at any time since the 'bear drive.' Trading was almost wholly professional. Gains ranged from fractions to around two points."

In Boston at 12 o'clock the market was quiet and rather weak. Gains included New Haven ½, U. S. Smelting ⅛ and Shannon ⅛.

Among declines were American Zinc ⅛, Butte & Superior ⅛, Calumet & Hecla ⅛, Fruit, Copper Range ⅛, Mohawk ⅛, Quincy 1 and Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies common ⅛.

The Boston Curb market was quiet. At the end of the first hour Boston Ely was higher and Bay State Gas showed a loss. Boston Ely and First National were comparatively active.

At the start there was nothing interesting about the New York market. It was quiet and dull, while there was unusual number of leading issues opened unchanged. Fluctuations were as narrow as the market. Traders showed no initiative. They were awaiting developments. Extension of the short interest has inspired caution. Many people believe liquidation is over and that the next price movement should be upward.

The Boston market began listless. Early prices ruled lower, but quite changes were without significance.

HOLD MAN FOR BIG ROBBERY IN WOBURN

Sebastian Prest, the man arrested by the Woburn police last night after three automobile bandits entered the home of Natale Iacovitte, a well-to-do Woburn farmer, and beat him and his wife into insensibility, then robbing the house, was arraigned in the Woburn court today.

Mrs. Iacovitte was brought to the station after Prest was arrested, and the police say she identified him with certainty as the man who broke into her home.

Meanwhile an armed posse searched the woods between Bedford and Woburn for the other two men, who are believed to have gone into hiding there.

The police learned today that after their visit to the Iacovitte home last night two mysterious men approached the home of Mrs. Mary Nagle, and when Mrs. Nagle refused to let them in they threatened her with a revolver.

GIRL FIRES ON BANDIT.

Her daughter, Vera Nagle, had dred seven shots at the auto bandits as they fled from the Iacovitte home; and Miss Nagle snatched up her gun and covered these two men, ordering them away.

They fled then without further parley.

A general alarm for the capture of the other two has been sounded throughout Greater Boston. The posse now scouring the Bedford woods has been augmented by volunteers from many of the surrounding towns. Policemen from Woburn, Bedford, Reading and Stoneham are aiding in the hunt. It is believed that the fugitives are armed and that they will offer resistance if cornered to earth.

The Iacovittes live alone on Locust street, on the outskirts of the city. Their nearest neighbors, the Nagles, live about a block away.

Shortly after 10 o'clock last night a big, high-powered touring car, containing five men, drove up to the house and, jumping out, the trio ascended to the piazza.

ATTACKED BY THREE MEN.

When Iacovitte responded to a knock all three shoved their way inside. One displayed what Iacovitte thought was a pistol. Another, a wearer of the affair, announced that the trio had come to make a "liquor raid."

When Iacovitte, amazed as the assertion, started to voice a protest, one of the men struck a blow at his head. Thoroughly alarmed, Iacovitte thereupon shouted a warning to his wife, who was in an adjoining room, and whipped out a revolver which he was carrying in his hip pocket.

As he swept the pistol toward his assailant's head, however, he was seized from behind, disarmed and flung bodily into the kitchen. There he was attacked by all three intruders. Under their blows and kicks he soon became unconscious. He was then thrown into a closet, the door of which was barricaded with several pieces of furniture.

Meantime Mrs. Iacovitte, attracted by her husband's screams, had rushed into the room. At sight of the man she started for the door, screaming for aid. She had taken but a step or two, however, when she, too, was overpowered and hurled to the floor.

With the butt of her husband's revolver she was then clubbed into a state of insensibility. The men then rolled her underneath a table and hastily proceeded with their work. Subsequent investigation showed that they searched the house from top to bottom.

OVERLOOK $750.

While it is believed that they secured a considerable sum of money, it was later discovered that they had overlooked a roll of bills amounting to $750. This money was tucked away in the back part of a bureau drawer.

While the men were ransacking the house Iacovitte regained consciousness. He managed to reach the nearest telephone booth and, jumping out, the trio ascended to the piazza.

John Bull Puzzles International Law

THE diplomatic representatives of the allies are making themselves ridiculous in their discussion of the status of the German submarine Deutschland, whose epoch-making transatlantic voyage is the sensation of the hour.

The administration is inclined to recognize the ship as a merchantman, pure and simple. This is reasonable, as naval experts have examined the craft and found absolutely no indication of any armament or even preparation for the installation of armament. But the administration is laying great stress upon the fact that the Deutschland carries no guns. Is the complete absence of guns necessary to establish the peaceful character of the ship?

If so, why are English, French and Italian vessels mounted with guns, ostensibly for defence only, sailing almost weekly from New York without any indication that the administration regards their armament indicative of a warlike character?

The British Ambassador and his sympathetic associates take issue with the administration's point of view. That is their business, and they are not to be criticised for performing it. They probably know well enough that their contention is hopeless, but feel that it must be made for home consumption.

Where they are ridiculously illogical is in their claim that a submarine, because of its peculiar character, is necessarily a vessel of war and, as such, is subject to sinking by an enemy vessel without the exercise of visitation and search, or making provision for the safety of its crew.

Just a year ago at this time all Great Britain was noisily insisting that nothing about the peculiar character of submarines should cause any change in the law of nations to meet their peculiar needs.

The Germans argued that because of the peculiarly fragile construction and helplessness in the face of even a slightly armed enemy submarines ought not to be compelled to halt an enemy ship and board her for inspection prior to sinking. They insisted that during the pause necessary for this the submarine might be sent to the bottom by a single well-directed shot.

"No matter," said the Britons; "if the submarines are too vulnerable to make war in accordance with the laws of nations you Germans must abandon their use."

The United States thereupon took a position in harmony with that of the British and enforced upon the commanders of German submarines the duty of halting an enemy ship, inspecting it and providing for the safety of its passengers and crew before sinking it.

Now come the British and say, in the case of the Deutschland: "These submarines are of a character that makes it impossible for us to respect the laws of nations in dealing with them. This ship, the Deutschland, may be a purely commercial vessel, but if we try to follow international law, bring her to a stop and board her and remove her crew before attacking her, she is perfectly capable of submerging suddenly and escaping. Furthermore, the apparent differences between a merchant submarine and an armed submarine are so slight that in such a case we might be exposing our vessels to a torpedo attack at short range. International law must be amended to meet the case of commercial submarines and for our benefit."

John Bull was never gifted with a sense of humor. He is constitutionally unable to understand that what is sauce for the other fellow's goose is sauce for his own gander. His contention is that international law must be rigidly respected by German submarines, but is not binding on their enemies.

Even the Wilson administration can hardly reverse itself and abandon all its earlier constructions of that law in order to serve this particular British purpose.

Once-Overs

Don't be known by your complaints. It does not take a smart man to find things to which he objects.

It does require a man out of the ordinary, however, to overlook the drawbacks and find those things which are worthy of praise and support.

There are some persons who have a penchant for finding fault; but haven't you noticed that they are the least capable of suggesting practical plans to correct what they consider defects?

If you must look for trouble, endeavor, before presenting it to others, to formulate plans for obviating it.

If you cannot suggest a remedy, keep quiet until you are able to do so.

Another well-known fact about the fault-finder is that he is so often the one who has the most weak spots.

You may not agree to this statement at once. To be convinced, go over in your mind those whom you know to be complainers. True, isn't it?

You will find infinitely more satisfaction in looking for the good things, so take the hunch now—

Don't be a scold.

Good Manners Is Not Insincerity, but a Law of Mutual Kindness

By Dorothy Dix

NOT long ago I wrote an article for this column in which I spoke with enthusiasm of the school for manners that the University of New York is going to inaugurate. A man reader takes exception to my views. He writes:

"I disapprove highly of all the etiquette, because etiquette robs us of sincerity.

"If you go into a room and find people there who are not of the slightest interest to you, why should you hypocritically be sympathetic to their troubles, and rejoice in their happiness, when in reality you do not care whether they live or die? Yet etiquette requires you to do that.

Etiquette will stop you from telling a man that he is a liar, or a woman that she is old and ugly.

"Etiquette prescribes that you smile when you have not the slightest desire to do so.

"What is the good of etiquette?"

"Etiquette forces you to listen to the boresome conversation and long-winded stories of others.

"Etiquette forces you to do that which you do not desire to do, and to leave undone that which you wish to do."

Etiquette is simply one of the rules of the game. When human beings rose above beasts who were continually at each other's throats and decided to live together in peace and harmony, they found out that they would have to agree upon certain things that they could do, and couldn't do, and that everyone must respect these unwritten laws because it made things pleasanter for everybody.

Out of this grew what we call the conventions of society and etiquette, and, foolish and arbitrary as they sometimes seem, they invariably rest upon some human need and represent the accumulated experience of centuries of man's dealing with man, and the best way to do it.

Moreover, etiquette is nothing more nor less than the Golden Rule dressed up in party clothes and with a flower in its buttonhole. It teaches us to treat others as we would like to have others treat us. It makes us respect other people's privacy and opinions, and be careful of their susceptibilities as we would like to have them respect ours.

You can have no better illustration of the happy working out of etiquette than in the very instances cited by my correspondent. He asks scornfully why he should appear to sympathize with the joys and sorrows of people for whom he cares nothing.

Doubtless this man never takes the trouble to write a note of condolence when there is a death in the family of some acquaintance, or telephone a congratulation when some good luck comes the way of a neighbor.

Yet how would he feel if, when he entered a room, nobody greeted him with a pleasant and cordial word because no one happened to be vitally interested in him? Would he not be cut to the heart if his wife or child lay dead and no human being spoke a word of sympathy to him? Would not the happiness of his success be dimmed if not a man put out a hand and said: "Good for you, old chap; I'm awfully glad for you"?

My correspondent says that etiquette forces us to listen with an affectation of interest to tedious conversationalists, and laugh over jokes that we cut our teeth on in our cradles. Let us thank heaven that it does. Precious few of us are such spellbinders that we can hold an audience on the intrinsic thrillingness of our discourse, nor are we brilliant enough humorists to provoke with our wit the ready laugh that etiquette hands us.

Yet which one of us would enjoy a listener who frankly yawned when he was bored, or felt called upon to tell us that he had heard our cherished best story a million times before?

And if etiquette prevents us from enjoying the sacred joy of telling a man that he lies, or a woman that she is ten years older than she pretends to be, and that anybody can tell that her complexion and her hair are only hers by right of purchase, is it not as broad as it is long, for it keeps other people from saying the same brutal things to us?

As for etiquette being the mother of insincerity, that is nonsense. There is more to praise than to blame, more to admire than to criticise, more to like than to hate in the world. Why is it not as honest to speak of a person's good qualities as his bad qualities?

Progressing

We are glad to note that Mr. Wilson now believes in the necessity for a bigger navy, and we trust he will soon become converted to the necessity of a bigger secretary.
